Tells County It Needs More Money for TB Project

JONES CITES RISING COST OF MATERIALS

Architect Warns Board Its
$300,000 Bond Issue Won't
Build Sanatorium.

County commissioners were categorically warned that they haven't enough money to build the proposed new county tuberculosis hospital yesterday when they were presented a 22-page set of detailed plans for the structure.

Architect H. S. Jones submitted his plans for the modern four-story hospital but warned not only that costs of such a project today will exceed the $300,000 voted by taxpayers last fall but also that contractors are not interested in bidding for the job now.

"I wrote to 17 contractors and sub-contractors for advice on whether to proceed with this project and the five who have answered to date warned against trying to build now. And they said they would not bid on it if we did proceed," Jones told the commissioners.

Asked if the $300,000 approved by the voters in a bond issue last fall would build the sanatorium now, Jones flatly said "No."

Cost Going Up.
"According to the specifications for this new hospital, the cost should be about $1 per cubic foot of space. Actually, costs for hospitals now are running approximately $1.30 per cubic foot, or nearly one-third more than sale of your bonds will provide," the architect told the commissioners.

However, Jones strongly urged the commissioners to investigate the possibilities of obtaining additional money from the federal government under the provisions of a recent congressional measure.

Jones said congress had passed a bill providing money for one-third of the cost of public hospitals constructed by political subdivisions. He said, however, that he didn't think President Truman had signed the measure as yet.

Chairman C. L. Shoup said that he would make immediate investigation of chances of getting federal money. Commissioner John W. Selby said he didn't like to "run to the government for more money" but "any port will do in a storm." Commissioner Guy Stewart was also in favor of investigating federal aid.

Jones said specifications for the new sanatorium are in writing and ready for legal advertising to attract contractors' bids. He said, however, that the CPA will not grant a building permit until the county can certify it is ready to begin actual construction within 30 days of granting the permit.

THIRD TEST

Plans Under Way For Test of Atomic Bomb in Deep Water.

OFF BIKINI ATOLL. — (U) — Plans already are underway to explode an atomic bomb 3,000 feet under water off Bikini some time next spring. Vice Admiral W. H. P. Blandy, Operations Crossroads commander, disclosed today.

He said the present schedule calls for 15 to 20 target ships to be attached to towlines anchored on four or five islands on the southwestern edge of Bikini lagoon. The ships would be held out to sea by northeastern trade winds.

Blandy said that "Test Charley" would have to be held around April 1 because the winds shift to the southeast after that. In that event, target ships would be driven ashore.

Police Plan Raid On Gambling Ship

LOS ANGELES. — (INS) — District Attorney Fred N. Howser said complaints will be issued and a raid probably will be made today on Tony Corneo's gambling ship Lux, seven miles off Long Beach. As the Lux wound up its second evening of unmolesed operation, Howser's chief aide, Charles Stratton, declared: "The investigation has now proceeded far enough for the authorities to take action."

Plans Set For New Hospital

County Gets Architect's
Picture of $300,000
Building.

Richland county commissioners today had an architect's picture of the proposed county tuberculosis sanatorium which will be built on State Route 30 southeast of Mansfield as soon as funds are available and a contractor can be found.

The modern structure, expected to cost in excess of $300,000, will be twice as large as the present building on Lexington avenue and will have every feature available to speed the cure of patients.

Months of plan preparation ended when Architect Herbert S. Jones spread before the commissioners blueprints for the modern four-story 49-bed structure which will eventually replace the crowded 29-bed building at 535 Lexington avenue.

BUILDING TO HAVE 49 BEDS

The new sanatorium is designed for a normal capacity of 49 beds but can be expanded to 72-bed capacity by "doubling up" patients in the 24 bedrooms, four special rooms and two solaria.

The new structure, which will be erected on a 13-acre gift site, is to be of red brick and white concrete trimmed with stone. It will not have a single steel beam or girder in it, Jones reported.

(The 13 acres of land were donated to the county last fall by Mrs. R. W. Hunt and her army veteran son, Richard, for the "benevolent purpose of aiding the county's sick people." Jones said the site is well situated and will require only a minimum of grading in preparation for erecting the building.)

The new sanatorium's overall length and breadth of 170 by

TUG TOO WEAK TO PULL SHIP

Ranger's Skipper Tells Why
He Ordered Crew to Take Over Damaged Ship.

FALMOUTH, Eng. — (INS) — The skipper of the American Ranger assumed full responsibility today for taking the crippled American Farmer from a British ship and shepherding her to port under her own power.

As the damaged American freighter anchored in deep water inside Falmouth harbor, Capt. Oscar Johnson disclosed that he had cast off the British ship's tow lines when 22 hours of effort proved to his satisfaction that the Elizabeth could not handle her.

Capt. Johnson told a group of newsmen as salvage tugs clustered about the freighter and divers went below to examine the severity of the damage.

"I take responsibility for everything that happened on the American Farmer. I ordered my men to board her under Chief Officer Anthony Heather."

"I was convinced when I gave the order that the Elizabeth was incapable of towing the Farmer. I laid alongside for 22 hours without moving my propellers. The efforts of the Elizabeth to move the Farmer were unavailing since both were in the same position at the end of 22 hours."

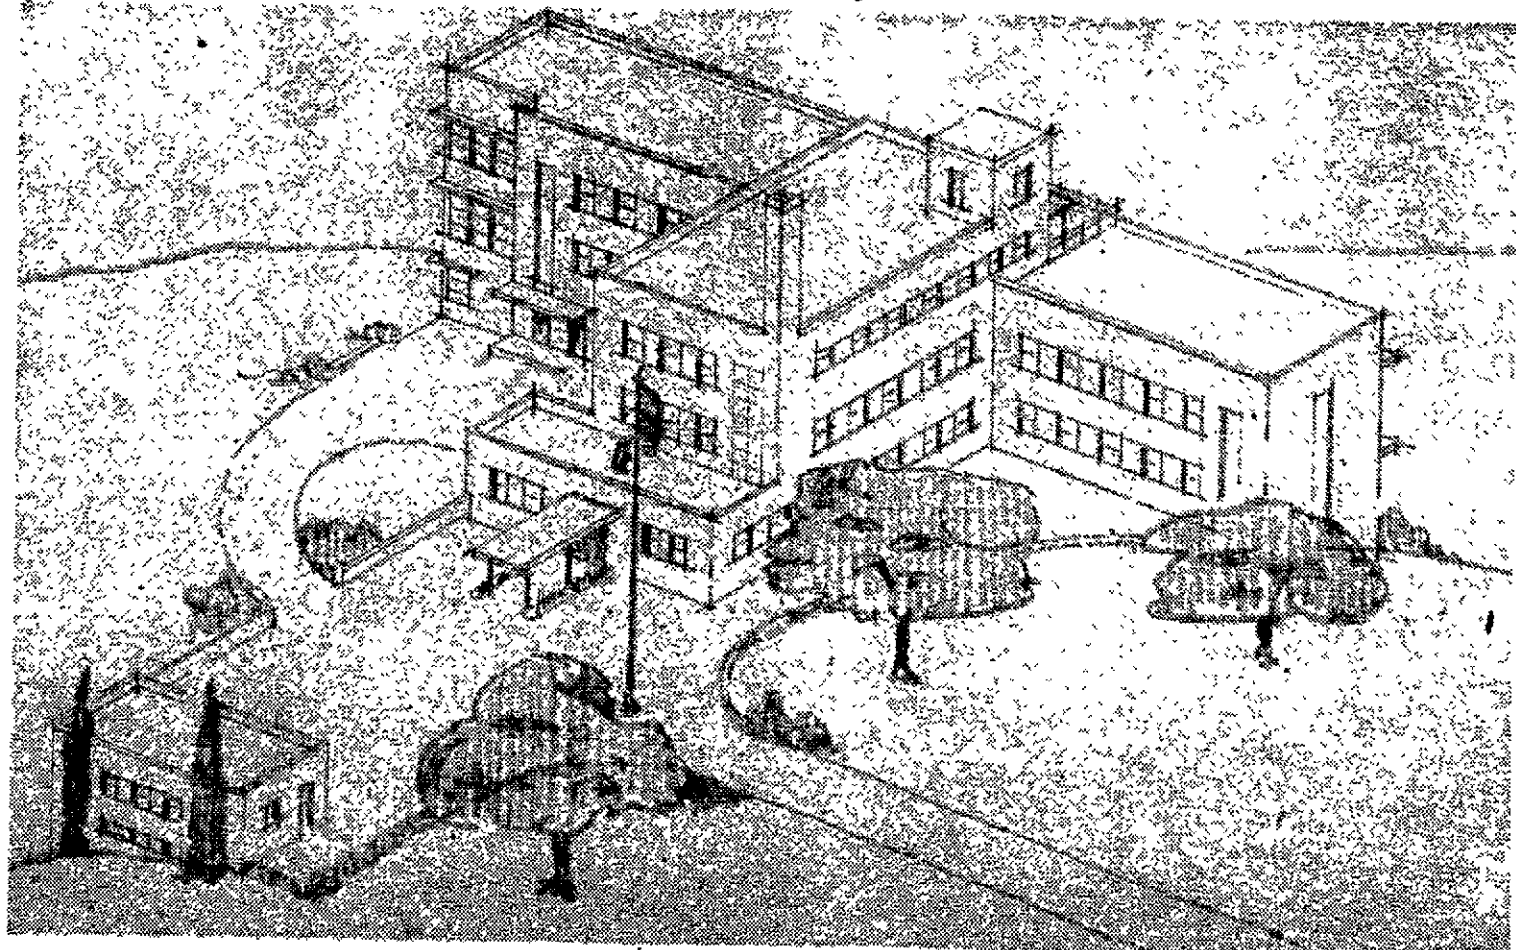

He explained that Chief Engineer Valdemar Kail, of New Rochelle, N. Y., went aboard, examined the boilers and after six hours in shape for operation, the American Ranger skipper continued. He added:

"He reported the Farmer was capable of making the distance under her own steam. It was then that I gave Heather the order to take over the ship from the British captain."

Architect's Drawing of Proposed Sanatorium

This is the architect's conception of the proposed Richland County Tuberculosis sanatorium on route 39 between Lucas and Mansfield at the old CCC camp site of 13 acres donated to the county by Mrs. R. W. Hunt and her son, Richard, an army veteran of 37 months' service in the Pacific area. The drawing is by Herbert S. Jones, architect.

SEARCH CLUBS AT ASHLAND

Police Pick Up Slots in Two

Case Arrest.

ASHLAND. — Police said that search warrants were made out this morning against the Miller Supper club, the Phoenix club, Eagles lodge, Elks lodge, the American Legion and the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Only club found open this morning, police said, was the Phoenix club where four slot machines boxed for shipment were found.

Police said also they planned to visit the clubs later today.

Earlier Glenn Shriver, secretary and treasurer of the Athletic club, 102 East Main street, was found innocent of charges of selling intoxicants without a permit in police court, following a raid on the club by city and state authorities last night.

Police said they found three slot machines on the premises of the club and added Shriver would be charged with displaying gambling devices.

City Law Director C. S. Huffman today said that mere display

ORDERS EXAM.

Court Appoints Alienists to Examine Heirns.

CHICAGO. — (P) — A psychiatric examination of William Heirns was ordered by the criminal court today when the confessed killer of two women and a little girl was arraigned on the third murder charge against him.

After the appointment of two alienists, arraignment on the charge of murdering Mrs. Josephine Ross, 43-year-old widow, on June 5, 1945, and on two other murder charges was continued to Sept. 4.

The 17-year-old defendant entered no plea to the Ross charge. Chief Justice Harold C. Ward of the criminal court appointed Dr. William Hames of the Cook County (Chicago) behavior clinic and Dr. Harry Hoffman, court psychiatrist, to examine the young possessor of the dual personality.

GI Village Hurt By 40-Hour Week

COLUMBUS. — (INS) — A federal regulation restricting working hours may halt construction on Ohio State university's "GI village" of temporary housing units needed to care for this fall's record enrollment.

Harry L. George, contractor handling the erection of the units, said the FHRA regulation forbidding more than a 40-hour week except in extreme cases was resulting in his men leaving the job for other private employers who give up to 53 hours work. "If it keeps on," George said, "we won't have a man working for us in another two weeks."

'Got a Room to Rent?' Scouts to Ask Friday

Boys to Go In Quest of Homes for Workers; Exodus of College Students to Leave Vacancies.

Armed with letters containing "important messages" for doorbells tomorrow, more than 150 Boy Scouts will ring doorbells tomorrow as their part in the civic campaign to obtain sleeping rooms for 5,000 new employees needed in industry in the next six months.

The house-to-house letter campaign is one of a number of steps which a civic committee is taking to promote a "Rent That Spare Room" drive in behalf of the thousands of new citizens which expansions in industries and other establishments are beginning to require.

Frank A. Berkey, committee chairman, said.

An appeal from the committee yesterday pointed out that Mansfield's current labor supply can provide only 500 workers of the 5,000 needed. Because of this, the U. S. Employment Service has recommended obtaining workers in labor surplus areas within a radius of 125 miles of Mansfield. Most of them will be unmarried, jobless war veterans, all carefully screened as to their desirability as citizens.

The letter going out tomorrow appeals to all in the city for help in this initial move for a "Greater Mansfield—Population 60,000 By 1950." It requests householders to give immediate serious consideration to renting spare rooms so they can be prepared to inform a solicitor of their intentions when he calls at their home in another city-wide canvass beginning next Monday.

"In addition to the spare rooms in hundreds of Mansfield homes right now, there should be hundreds of others which will be vacant when sons and daughters begin going back to colleges and universities this fall," Chairman Berkey said. "Other homes might find it possible to furnish a vacant room."

Paul Snyder, manager of the Liberty pool, said that new diving boards had been ordered and were expected to arrive here in time for installation before the Sunday event.

SEEK 5 BANDS FOR PARADE

Groups Mapping City's 'Victory
Day' Celebration Report
Plans Nearly Set.

Plans for an all-veterans "Victory Day" celebration mapped last Monday evening by 12 World War II veterans began to take form today.

Participation of at least three musical units was assured committee members yesterday and addition of two more was tentatively scheduled for the parade and formal retreat ceremonies to highlight commemoration of next Wednesday as "Victory Day" on the first anniversary of total victory in World War II.

Bulletins were scheduled to go out today to all members of the Retail Merchants association from V. H. Lodde, secretary-manager, urging business places to cooperate with the V-Day committee in observance of the event through advertising and window displays pertaining to the celebration.

Promised for the parade, honoring Mansfield's heroes of Bataan and other former ex-POWs were the McVey Post Legion band and drum corps and the Mansfield Senior high school band.

SHOWERS DUE

Forecast Calls For Rain in Northern Ohio Friday.

More showers are in sight tomorrow for the Mansfield area, and farmers won't object too much.

The weatherman promised clear and moderately warm weather for tonight, adding that scattered showers are a possibility for Friday in northern Ohio.

Rain earlier this week went a long way toward ending the dry spell in Richland county, but more showers are needed to bring life back to pastures and parched lawns.

The fleet expects to capture 2,000 whales, yielding 11,000 metric tons of whale oil, 1,700 tons of frozen meat, 14,000 tons of salted meat, 9,000 tons of salted blubber and 12 tons of liver oil.

PEACE PARLEY SET TO BEGIN TREATY TALKS

Indications Hint Conferees
Ready For Business After Long Controversy.

BULLETIN

PARIS. — (P) — Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov reopened the troublesome issue of voting procedure in a plenary session of the peace conference today, blaming Britain and the United States for what he said was a "grave mistake."

PARIS. — (P) — The Paris peace conference, stalled for nine days by a series of bitter controversies over rules of procedure, got down to business today with the indication that treaty talks with five former enemy states might begin within 48 hours.

Georges Bidault, temporary president of the conference, summoned the delegates of the 21 participating nations into a plenary session to receive the proposals of procedure, drafted by the rules committee.

Speedy acceptance of the proposals was a foregone conclusion, since all members of the conference were present at the procedure debate and since Britain's compromise plan for voting treaty recommendations was approved by more than a two-thirds majority.

Presidency Changes.

Today's session was to be Bidault's last as temporary president. After accepting the rules of procedure, the conference will be headed by U. S. Secretary of State James F. Byrnes under a rotation plan.

Vet's Voyage To Germany Ends At Jail

BAD NAUHEIM, Germany. — (P) — An ex-soldier who hitchhiked his way back to Germany because he found jobs too scarce and prices too high in the United States sat in jail here today awaiting American military government trial on charges of illegally entering the U. S. zone of occupation.

"They say they'll probably ship me back to the United States," said Ralph K. Betz, 26-year-old former machinist from Wiloughby, Ohio, who served 42 months in the army and was wounded in France. Betz was jailed last Saturday, although he said military officials have known his story ever since he arrived here last May in quest of a job.

He said he came into Germany without a passport or military orders by the simple expedient of stowing away on a troopship. At Mannheim he applied for a civilian job with his old army unit, the 59th quartermasters base depot.

Then began a legal merry-go-round as various military agencies shunted him from one office to another.

Betz thought he had won his fight when permission came for him to stay, and on May 20 he went to work at the 59th depot. But no contract of employment was signed at that time and he

TAXES, PAY, PENSIONS ON ACTION LIST

Lausche Orders 4th Special Session of State's 96th
General Assembly.

COLUMBUS. — (INS) — Governor Lausche today picked the afternoon of Aug. 20 for the convening of the fourth special session of the 96th general assembly.

The governor listed three subjects in his call—the increasing of old age pensions; a commission to study salaries for state workers, and a commission to study the tax revenues and tax distribution of Ohio and its subdivisions.

Both commissions, if established by the special session, would report back to the 97th general assembly which convenes in January.

Lausche's proclamation coincided with a blast from his Republican opponent for governor, former Attorney General Thomas J. Herbert. He charged the Lausche administration with failure to live up to its campaign promises to reduce taxes.

Urges Tax Cut.

Herbert also recommended a cut in sales tax from three to two per cent, pointing out that a "conservative estimate" of sales tax revenues this year indicated a yield of at least 100 million dollars.

Lausche smiled and refused comment on Herbert's charges, saying only that "the proclamation (calling the special session) speaks for itself."

The governor previously had indicated a belief the state might withdraw from certain tax fields to permit hard-pressed local communities to enter them. This was one of Herbert's proposals and one of the subjects to be studied by the tax study commission, if the special session establishes it.

Withholds Comment.

Lausche said he was "not yet prepared to discuss details of any of the bills" he would sponsor in the legislature, but indicated they would be prepared before the session convened a week from next Tuesday afternoon. How much the pension increase would be has not yet been definitely decided. The federal congress has enacted a law under which the federal government will provide ten of the first $15 of any pension and half of any remainder up to $45.

However, Lausche has stated he favors dollar-for-dollar matching. This would mean a $25 federal contribution would finance a maximum Ohio pension of $50, compared with the present maximum of $40 per month.

Nazi Colonel Admits Humans

NUERNBERG. — (INS) — Wolfram Sievers, a former SS colonel, admitted before the international military tribunal today that the SS substituted live human beings for animals in Nazi research laboratories.

He said this step was taken because "the supply of animals was depleted by war."

Sievers was rector of the Ancestral Heritage society, the SS scientific research institute that gathered anthropological data on so-called Aryan types. It conducted experiments to "purify" the racial strain.

Plane Dive Fatal To Six Crewmen

SAN FRANCISCO. — (INS) — U. S. Coast Guard headquarters in San Francisco said today that all six men aboard a twin-engine patrol bomber which exploded and crashed into the ocean, were believed lost.

Two bodies were recovered after the plane, on a search for a missing fishing boat, dove into the sea yesterday 146 miles north of San Francisco, near Point Arena, Cal. It exploded and sank within five minutes after the crash, one eyewitness reported.

Try and Stop Me

—By Bennet Cerf

A thirsty gentleman wandered into a corner saloon and ordered a dry Martini. He drank it with evident relish and allowed as how it was the best darn Martini he ever had tasted in his life.

"Do you always mix them this way?" he asked. "Or was this one of those divine accidents?" The barkeep whipped up another one as proof and the customer declared it was even better than the first.

"Such genius deserves a reward," said the customer. He reached into his pocket and produced a live lobster when he pressed into the hands of the astonished barkeep. "Here take this with my compliments," he said.

The barkeep held the live crustacean gingerly at arms length. "Thanks," he said dubiously. "I suppose I can take it home for dinner."

"No no," objected the custom. "He's already had his dinner. Take him to a movie."

The cashier of the restaurant kept a paper napkin next to the cash box. "Whenever a customer walks off without his change," he explained, "I tap the counter with it as hard as I can."

Before the Crusades, sugar was not known in northern Europe.

Local Nine Wins In Tourney

by Hal Clawson

Mansfield has felt the increase of baseball interest here this summer—and by next year it will be even more in evidence. Although rain cut the Chicago Cubs tryout camp here to one day, Monday, it proved to be an overwhelming success and the Cubs are keeping that in mind. Next Monday and Tuesday the Cleveland Indians will be in town with Scouts Laddie Placek and "Gyp" Lewis conducting a baseball instructional school. This, unlike the Cubs' tryout camp, will be open to all young players in Mansfield and surrounding towns who want to learn more about how to better play the game. Tryout camps such as the one the Cubs held here were limited to boys who graduated from high school. For the school the scouts will be mainly interested in younger boys of junior and senior high age.

The morning session will get underway at 10:30 both days with the afternoon program getting started at 2:30.

Jim Lymp, the Senior high baseball coach who has been conducting a sandlot program here this summer, will be a special scout for the Chicago Cubs next summer.

He will be placed in charge of a Cub school such as the one now being held at Bowling Green.

At such a school players from all over the country who are good diamond prospects are sent to the school still unsigned. It starts on June 1 and lasts through Sept. 1.

These boys who attend the school must pay their own expenses and therefore jobs are provided for them in the mornings. During the afternoon they are given instruction and inter-squad games are played.

Then in the evenings and on Saturday and Sunday afternoon games with strong out-of-town teams are scheduled. This will be the type of school that Lymp will operate here next summer for the Cubs.

Tony Lucadello, one of the scouts who conducted the camp here Monday, is in charge of the Bowling Green school. He has 40 boys who have not missed a single day since reporting June 1.

Lymp will take two local players to Bowling Green for the remainder of the season for the school.

They are Chug Floro, catcher on Mansfield high's district championship team the past season, and Jack Hammett, former Union high cage star who played baseball at Ohio State before entering the army.

Bobby Glasscock, Tiger first baseman, also caught the eye of the scouts and he will be watched while Don Hardy, now in the Marines, is also liked by the Chicago scouts.

MARION—Another Mansfield team came through with a first round victory in the district softball tournament here last night.

American Legion Post 72 turned in a 3-1 win over A's Place of Marion as "Bunky" Reynolds hurled a five-hitter.

Marion tallied its lone run in the fourth but Post 72 came back in the next inning to shove over three runs.

In other games played last night, Smitty's Grill of Marion defeated Stone's Grill of Mt. Vernon, 8-1, as Millisor hurled a four-hit tilt, and Universal Cooler of Marion shut out the Bucyrus Lions club 5 to 0.

Tonight three Mansfield nines will play in the tourney.

Following the opening game between the Moose and Phalanx Fraternity, both of Marion, Humphrey will play the Upper Sandusky Elks at 8 p. m. and Barnes will meet Gorman-Rupp at 9 p. m.

Friday night's games will be those which were scheduled for Tuesday night but postponed because of rain.

Casters Still Can Enter Contest Here

Those hard-to-get items that fishermen are always looking for—rods and reels—will be in the hands of two men by this Sunday night.

Harder to get than nylons—two rods and one reel will be the top prizes for the casting contest at Liberty park Sunday afternoon.

One of the events on the Water Show that is being planned by the Chamber of Commerce and the local Red Cross, the casting contest is expected to attract several casters from this area.

A True-Temper cast-master rod will be presented the winner along with a pluegger Supreme reel. Runner-up will get a True-Temper rod.

Dick Moulton, an expert caster, will be here to conduct the casting contest.

In order to allow more casters from this area to enter, entries will be accepted over the phone at the Chamber of Commerce office. The number is 1368-6.

FORMER YANK, TONY LAZZERI, IS DEAD

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif. — (AP) — "Poosh-Em-Up" Tony Lazzeri, former New York Yankee ball player and one of the murderers' row of hitters with Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig, is dead at 42.

The body of the popular big league star, who started baseball as a youngster on San Francisco's sand lots and played in seven world series, six with the Yanks and one with the Cubs during the 1930's, was found in his suburban home yesterday by his wife, Mary, and a brother-in-law, Louie Servante, when they returned from a vacation.

Hugh Crouse was second and Dick Burkhardt was third. Geary received a brand new Shelby bike while Crouse was awarded a ball glove and Dick Burkhardt a speedometer.

Eighteen boys entered the race although nearly 35 had taken out entry blanks. Some boys couldn't meet the rules.

Harry Mehook was the starter and Homer Dent the judge.

Laubie's Lose In Last Frame

SHELBY—The Eagles staged a rally in the last half of the seventh inning to strengthen their lead in the second half of the Shelby softball league season, by defeating Laubie's Shell Service station, 3 to 2, Wednesday night on the waterworks diamond.

Leading throughout the game, 2 to 0, the Laubie's nine lost the game in the last inning on errors. The Eagles pushed three runners over the plate at the beginning of the seventh inning.

It was the sixth win out of seven games for the Eagles and the second loss out of six games for Laubie's team which had defeated the winners three times before earlier in the season.

Bob Laubie, losing pitcher, only gave four hits, while Eddie Griffith, Eagle pitcher, gave nine hits.

ASSOCIATION UMP GOES TO MAJORS

COLUMBUS — (AP) — Umpire William F. McKinley has been sold to the American League and will report to President William Harbridge tomorrow. H. Roy Hamey, American Association president announced today.

McKinley, who is 35 and a resident of Orangeville, O., joined the association in late 1941 after three years with the Ohio State, North Carolina and Michigan State leagues.

Feller Wants Regular Turn

CHICAGO — (AP) — Two coveted pitching ambitions sent Bob Feller to the mound for the Cleveland Indians today in a big gamble that may effect his brilliant hurling future.

Suffering from a pulled back muscle and obviously not in top shape, Feller scorned an offer by Manager Lou Boudreau to pass up his pitching turn and rest from the injury that forced him to leave the game last Sunday at Cleveland after pitching 6 1/2 innings against the New York Yankees.

"I'm paid to pitch, not sit on the bench," Feller said, "and that's what I intend to do. I don't think I'm hurting myself by this decision."

Feller's anxiety to pitch was spurred by keen ambition to break the major league modern strikeout record set by Rube Waddell, and to become the first American league pitcher to win 30 games since Lefty Grove. Feller has 246 strikeouts and needs 30 to break Waddell's mark.

Key Players Starting Join Hospital Lists

By JOE REICHLER, AP Sports Writer.

"Old Man Injury" is in his most merciless mood in many a moon today as one by one, key players of major league baseball teams join already overcrowded hospital lists.

Heading the list of currently ailing non-combatants are such topnotch performers as Bob Feller, Cleveland Indians; Ted Williams, Johnny Pesky and Mike Higgins, Boston Red Sox; Johnny Mize and Buddy Kerr, New York Giants; Johnny Berardino, St. Louis Browns; Pete Reiser and Harry Lavagetto, Brooklyn Dodgers; Stan Hack, Chicago Cubs, and Schoolboy Rowe of the Phillies.

The absence of Williams, Pesky and Higgins is causing no great alarm on the Hub front as the American league leading Red Sox have too commanding a lead with the season two-thirds gone. With the New York Yankees' 4-3 defeat by the Senators in Washington last night, the idle Sox increased their margin over their nearest rivals to 13 full games.

Williams, who sat out the last two Red Sox contests with a run-of-the-mine fever, and Pesky, sidelined by a sprained ankle, are both expected back in the lineup within a day or two. Higgins, out with a sprained ligament in his leg, will not be ready for another week, at least.

The challenging St. Louis Cardinals overpowered the last place Pirates last night 8-1 at Pittsburgh. Two Dodger regulars, outfielder Pete Reiser and third baseman Harry Lavagetto are out of action with head and leg injuries, respectively, while Second Baseman Eddie Stanky, bothered by a foot ailment, is playing on nerve alone. The players are expected back in action soon.

The Indians fell three and a half games behind the fourth place Senators when the White Sox overcame a 3-0 deficit to nose out the Tribe 4-3 in Chicago.

Rained out of their game with the Dodgers yesterday, the sixth place Giants are only three and a half games away from the fourth place Boston Braves who were washed out of the twin bill with the Philadelphia Phillies.

The St. Louis Browns, despite the absence of Second Baseman Bernardino, their leading hitter, edged out the Detroit Tigers 3-2. Rain washed out the scheduled Red Sox-A's doubleheader as well as the Dodgers-Giants contest and the twin bill between the Braves and Phillies.

Finishing three strokes behind Krisko and qualifying for third money in the $3,500 tourney was Bill Barbour, 38 year old Cleveland pro who paced the field through the early rounds but faded to a three over par 75 on the final 18 to wind up with a 68-70-75—213.

SAMMY JAY IS INDIGNANT

Be very careful whom you blame
Lest you besmirch another's name.
—Old Mother Uature.

Sammy Jay has his faults. Who hasn't? He does things that he shouldn't do. Who doesn't? So Sammy often is blamed for things he does not do. It is strange how the bad things one does are remembered by others while the good deeds are forgotten.

Two babies had been lost from the nest of Redeye the Vireo. Was it by accident that they had fallen from the nest? Had they climbed up to the edge and tumbled out while father and mother were away? The first one had been found on the ground, killed by the fall. That might have been an accident. The second had disappeared from the nest the very next day, and this one hadn't been found. On both days Sammy Jay had been seen in the neighborhood. Sammy was reported to have a liking for fresh meat in the form of newly hatched babies of his feathered neighbors, a reputation shared by his big cousin, Blacky the Crow.

When the third Vireo baby disappeared and couldn't be found there was no doubt in the minds of the neighbors. There was no doubt at all.

"Of course Sammy Jay took them," declared Kitty the Catbird and Mrs. Kitty nodded in agreement.

"No doubt about it. No doubt whatever," said Welcome Robin. "He must have been sneaking around watching for a chance when both Mr. and Mrs. Redeye were off running for food for the babies. Then he made sure no one else was watching and flew away with the babies."

"He didn't fly away with the first one. That was found on the ground," said Winsome Bluebird, trying to be just.

"Probably he dropped it and was afraid he would be seen if he waited to pick it up," said Chippy the Chipping Sparrow.

"And he didn't eat the second one," said Melody the Wood Thrush unexpectedly.

"How do you know he didn't?" chorused the others.

"Because some one else did," declared Melody.

"Who?" All the feathered neighbors in that part of the Old Orchard crowded around Melody.

"Striped Chipmunk," declared Melody.

"I don't believe it. He wouldn't do a thing like that," said Goldie the Oriole.

"Wouldn't he? If you think he wouldn't you don't know Striped Chipmunk. No, sir, you don't know Striped Chipmunk. He is as

Barclay On Bridge

By SHEPARD BARCLAY

If you have none too strong an opening suit bid and your partner makes a one-over-one response in another suit, you don't know whether he is strong in general or weak. But if your own rebid is followed by his minimum rebid of the suit he showed, first, you have no license to count on him for a thing except considerable length in that suit. His bid is as near to a complete sign-off as exists in the game, barring a pass. It warns you that the pair will probably be better off playing in his suit, with you laying down a fair dummy, than with you playing it and a worthless dummy opposite you.

and right there South dropped out of the bidding, at the very worst time. His partner should have dropped out after hearing the 2-Spades sign-off rebid, and that contract could have been made without much ado, one trick being lost in trumps and two in each minor. Besides a nice part-score of 60, the pair would have had 100 honors.

But, after North made his very bad third bid of hearts, South went sour. With his worthless hand—for dummy purposes—he should have stretched himself to one more bid of spades at the level of three. That, as is developed, would have gone down a trick, but it would not have been doubled.

Just notice, however, what happened to Mr. Assertive North in his 3-Hearts. He took a terrific lambasting in which the opponents scored three trump tricks, two each in the minors and one in spades, a total of eight. So North was down four, and he had no honors to assuage his wounds.

This was a case in which the weak hand as declarer, with a fair dummy, could take eight tricks, whereas the stronger hand with a worthless dummy could take only five, a difference of three—not in favor of a weak declarer, but of a fair dummy.

ROOTING TIP OF FORSYTHIA BRANCH

HARDWOOD CUTTINGS CAN BE TAKEN IN AUTUMN

Act Now for Forsythia Blooms Next Spring

If you want to enjoy an inspiring display of yellow blooms early next April, plant Forsythia shrubs this fall. If you already have a planting of the shrubs, you may be interested in adding a new pale, yellow variety which is the loveliest of all the Forsythias to date. It is called Spring Glory, and its branches at blooming time are completely covered with brilliant "golden bells."

Although Forsythia can be planted in either spring or fall, the best time is in the fall. You will not interfere with bud development and it is not necessary to prune back the bush as in spring planting.

Forsythia can be propagated by laying or "rooting" the tips of side branches, as illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph. The pendulous varieties take root by themselves wherever the slender branches bend to the ground. The upright forms can be propagated by pegging down a long branch. Notching the buried portion of the branch speeds the formation of roots. After the branch is well-rooted, it can be severed from the parent bush and set out as a new plant.

Forsythia also grows easily from cuttings. Greenwood cuttings can be taken in mid-June, and hardwood cuttings in autumn, as illustrated. These late cuttings are called half-ripened stem cuttings and should be made from this season's growth. The cuttings should be from 6 to 10 inches long. Make a clean, slightly diagonal cut just above a bud at the top and just below a bud at the bottom. Bury the cuttings in a deep box of moist sand, soil or sawdust. Keep in a cool, dark place over winter. When spring comes plant the cuttings in a "nursery row" leaving only the top bud above ground. The cuttings should be well-rooted by fall and can then be moved to give them more growing space.

Amvets Featured In Magazine Story

Mansfield Amvets are prominently featured in the new issue of "The Ohio Magazine" which devotes five pages to a story of the state's 42 posts and 4,000 members of American Veterans of World War II.

Featured in the magazine, which will appear on the newsstands Monday, are pictures of state Amvet officials and Past Commander Elden Becker of the Mansfield post taken at the recent ox-roast here and at the last state executive committee meeting in Columbus.

Since its inception in April, Mansfield Post No. 26 has grown from 22 original members to 258, actively participating in veterans' and civic affairs.

15 Now Live In Once Busy Town

CARDIFF, Ill. — (UP) — This "ghost town" once saw its choice lots sell for $1,000, and boasted 16 saloons, a bank, a hotel and six groceries.

Today, the population stands at 15, a few of them remaining from the "boom" days when the big mines worked day and night.

DIVIDENDS AID WALL STREET'S BULLISH TREND

Most Stocks Hold Place in Recovery Bracket; Some Leaders Indifferent.

NEW YORK (AP)—Stocks generally continued in the recovery bracket today although many market leaders still were a trifle indifferent.

Bullish sentiment was based partly on the flow of pleasing dividends and earnings.

Ahead were U. S. Steel, Youngstown Sheet, General Motors, Chrysler, Santa Fe, Southern Pacific, Pennsylvania Railroad, Goodrich, Montgomery Ward, Electric Power & Light, Johns-Manville, Union Carbide, Deere and Texas Co. Occasional stumblers were N. Y. Central, Air Reduction, Anaconda, and Consolidated Edison.

COUNTY GETS PICTURE OF TB HOSPITAL

Architect Presents Plans For $300,000 Structure to Be Built Soon.

110 feet will be in the general shape of a T. The patient wards, on the second and third floors, will face a rolling expanse of landscaped lawn to the south when finished.

The north end of the building will contain the main entrance and across from it will be a six-car garage with basement room for storage of lawn mowers and other maintenance machinery.

Jones' plans call for the following: Ground floor—patients' recreation facilities including a large "general purpose room" for auditorium, stage and movie presentations, an occupational therapy room, patients' library, and patients' canteen; kitchen serving the entire institution; staff dining room; employees' dining room; two general purpose bedrooms; receiving department; central linen room; completely equipped laundry; incinerator; storage and locker space; custodian's and housekeeper's rooms; and morgue.

Second floor—main entrance into lobby; administrative offices and staff rooms; 12 patients' bedrooms (from one to four beds in each room); two isolation rooms; solarium; laboratory; X-ray, pneumothorax treatment, and out-patients rooms; and nurses' station and service rooms for medical administration.

Third floor—12 more bedrooms; two detention rooms for violent patients; solarium; living quarters for interne physicians; dental office; operating room with adjacent sterilizer and workroom; pneumothorax treatment and fluoroscope rooms; physical therapy room; and service rooms for patient administration.

Fourth floor—10 bedrooms, five baths and living room baths for nurses who live at the sanatorium; roof deck, 40 by 20 feet and partly roofed over, for patients and staff.

Details of the building plans call for a ventilation system that will provide a complete change of air every two minutes; two boilers, heated by coal-stoked furnaces that will provide steam heat which is automatically controlled at a constant temperature by an outside electric thermostat; kitchen completely electrified; electric elevator and dumb waiter; asphalt tile floors except in service rooms where special flooring impervious to water, vermin and insects will be installed; acoustical ceilings; and double-paned windows, all of which will be screened from the inside.

The building will contain 38 lavatories, 30 water closets, 27 baths (either tub, showers or a combination of the two), and 56 sinks of various types.

Bus Accident 'Victim Better'

BUCCYRUS—Mrs. Lillian Starr, of Buccyrus, who suffered scalp lacerations and shock yesterday when her car collided with a Greyhound bus here, was reported "resting well" today by City hospital.

Walter Suht, of Detroit, Mich., passenger on the bus, was to be x-rayed today to determine a possible skull fracture. He received a broken nose in the crash. Hospital authorities said 11 of the 17 bus passengers who were injured were x-rayed last night. All were released, including Thomas Murray of Delaware, driver of the bus.

room at little expense and thereby have a source of extra income.

Sets Rental Rates.
In regard to room rental rates, the Civic committee made a survey and reported it found $5 per week for a single room or $8 per week for a double room as "a fair rental price range."

It was emphasized by the committee that workers to be recruited for Mansfield will be chosen only after they have been carefully checked as to "good citizenship."

"When housing conditions are relieved through more construction work in Mansfield, many of these men coming to Mansfield from smaller communities will be the next door neighbors of us already making Mansfield our home," Berkey said.

"We have been given every assurance from local, state and regional offices of the USES that the men certified will be desirable citizens."

Headquarters for the campaign are at the offices of the U. S. Employment Service, North Diamond street.

"These new citizens will not begin arriving in Mansfield in great numbers, but it is extremely important that we know within the next seven days of the room accommodations that are available," Berkey said.

"Householders should also bear this in mind. Possibly they don't have a room available at the present time but will have at a later date. They will be asked to estimate the available date when the house to house solicitor calls."

A group of Mansfield women is now being organized into a canvassing staff which will call at nearly every Mansfield home. The women will start their task Monday. Final organization plans are to be made at a meeting Friday at 3 p. m. couldn't draw any pay without one, so on July 10 he came here to Continental Base Section headquarters to sign up.

His reappearance started the merry-go-round revolving again and he was ordered to stand by while his case was reviewed.

After nearly a month he got an answer—an order confining him to jail and a threat of court martial by the military government on charges of illegal entry into the country.

Weiss Files Again For Holmes Sheriff

MILLERSBURG — Harry R. Weiss, former Holmes county sheriff who resigned his position recently on recommendation of state authorities, yesterday filed as a candidate for the unexpired term as sheriff several hours before the deadline.

Other candidates who filed for the term are Wayne D. Stainer, incumbent; Cleo Hoover, former Millersburg marshal; Ted Strutz, former candidate for sheriff; Carl Bevington, of Glenmont, and Charles Monticue, former proprietor of an inn at Winesburg.

MILLERSBURG — William Logsdon, Millersburg ginseng grower, filed new affidavits against two teen-age boys charging theft of more than $1,500 of ginseng, following dismissal yesterday of the original case by Juvenile Judge F. W. Fankhauser

Meanwhile Chief Harry Smith reported "no new statement" on the latest development in the death of Mrs. Kate Semler.

Authorities are awaiting a chemical and fingerprint analysis by the Federal Bureau of Investigation in hope some light may be cast on the baffling mystery of how the Ashland divorcee got from her bloodstained bathroom to the cistern at the rear of her home.

No arrests had been made up until noon Thursday, police said.

Judge Fankhauser said the boys had been arrested by Harry Weiss under illegal authority as a special constable. He set Aug. 17 for the new hearing.

For a peace-loving people, the Chinese seem to be getting along very badly among themselves.

It is being noted, of course, that President Truman traveled in "The Sacred Cow" to accomplish the purge of Slaughter.

During the next "Be Kind to Animals" week there might be some investigation as to whatever became of what was once known as "the watchdog of the treasury."

Rooms Needed for Many Newcomers

NEED for more living quarters in Mansfield is given added emphasis by announcement that an organized campaign is to be conducted to find rooms in private homes for additional workers who will be employed by local industries within the next few months—if they can find a place to live.

The idea is to encourage families that have surplus rooms in their home to take a roomer, at least temporarily, so as to bridge over until more homes and apartments can be built.

That there are "extra" rooms in many homes cannot be doubted, but the extent to which families accustomed to living alone will consent to even the slight inconvenience of providing for a roomer cannot be known until the planned survey has been completed.

It should be reassuring, however, that plans contemplate a "screening" of incoming workers, as to their desirability as citizens, and that all will be recruited from Ohio.

During the war years, and even more remotely, Mansfield, like many other cities, was plagued by an influx of persons unaccustomed to reasonable requirements for good behavior, unacquainted with modern sanitation facilities, and unfitted for acceptance in well-ordered homes.

This should not be the experience, however, in connection with the type of workers who will be attracted to Mansfield by permanent employment opportunities that will be opened to acceptable persons, and it may be hoped that the "Rent a Spare Room" campaign will result in many rooms being made available—even in families that had heretofore given no thought of accommodating a roomer.

This invitation may well apply to suburban Mansfield, in addition to homes within the city limits. If, in advance of the planned canvass, there are any families who wish to volunteer the rental of a room in their home, information to that effect can be given at the USES office, 54 North Diamond street, Phone 4154-6.

Opportunities In Foreign Service

VETERANS of World War II who saw something of other countries under war conditions and were interested in the varying aspects of life under foreign flags may be suitable candidates for diplomatic careers. The Division of Foreign Service Personnel of the department of state, in Washington, is on the lookout for more applicants.

The term "foreign service workers" covers a broad field, embracing ambassadors, ministers and consuls, who are assisted by clerks, interpreters, secretaries, and office workers. These employees of the government are concerned with all the relationships between the people of this country and those of other countries. Political problems are handled by ambassadors and ministers, while economic and commercial matters are taken care of by consuls general, consuls, and vice-consuls.

A young man who goes into this work must be tactful and adaptable, and must have a high degree of intelligence combined with integrity. His college training should cover international law, economics, history, languages, government and geography. He must pass a stiff competitive examination, and a second oral examination before a group of men from the state department. The first year of his training is spent abroad in learning and observing, after which he returns to this country and attends the foreign service officers' training school.

Few careers offer more varied experiences or more opportunities for usefulness over a broad field than the diplomatic service.

Votes That Bring Financial Gains

SENATOR WAYNE MORSE, of Oregon, has offered a suggestion that sounds quite reasonable. He would require that every senator file a public statement of his income, fees, salaries and dealings in securities and commodities. He has in mind not only the May case, but the frequent charges that legislators have private businesses which are affected by proposed laws, and that nevertheless they do not hesitate to vote on them. Drew Pearson recently named several senators who should have refrained from voting on certain bills because their pocketbooks were directly affected.

This is an old evil. Many tariff laws contained steel, sugar, wool and cotton clauses which directly benefited certain senators. Half a century ago Senator Matthew S. Quay of Pennsylvania openly admitted to speculation in sugar while the sugar tariff was up in congress.

Publicity such as Senator Morse suggests would diminish the likelihood of senators voting in favor of their own pocketbooks.

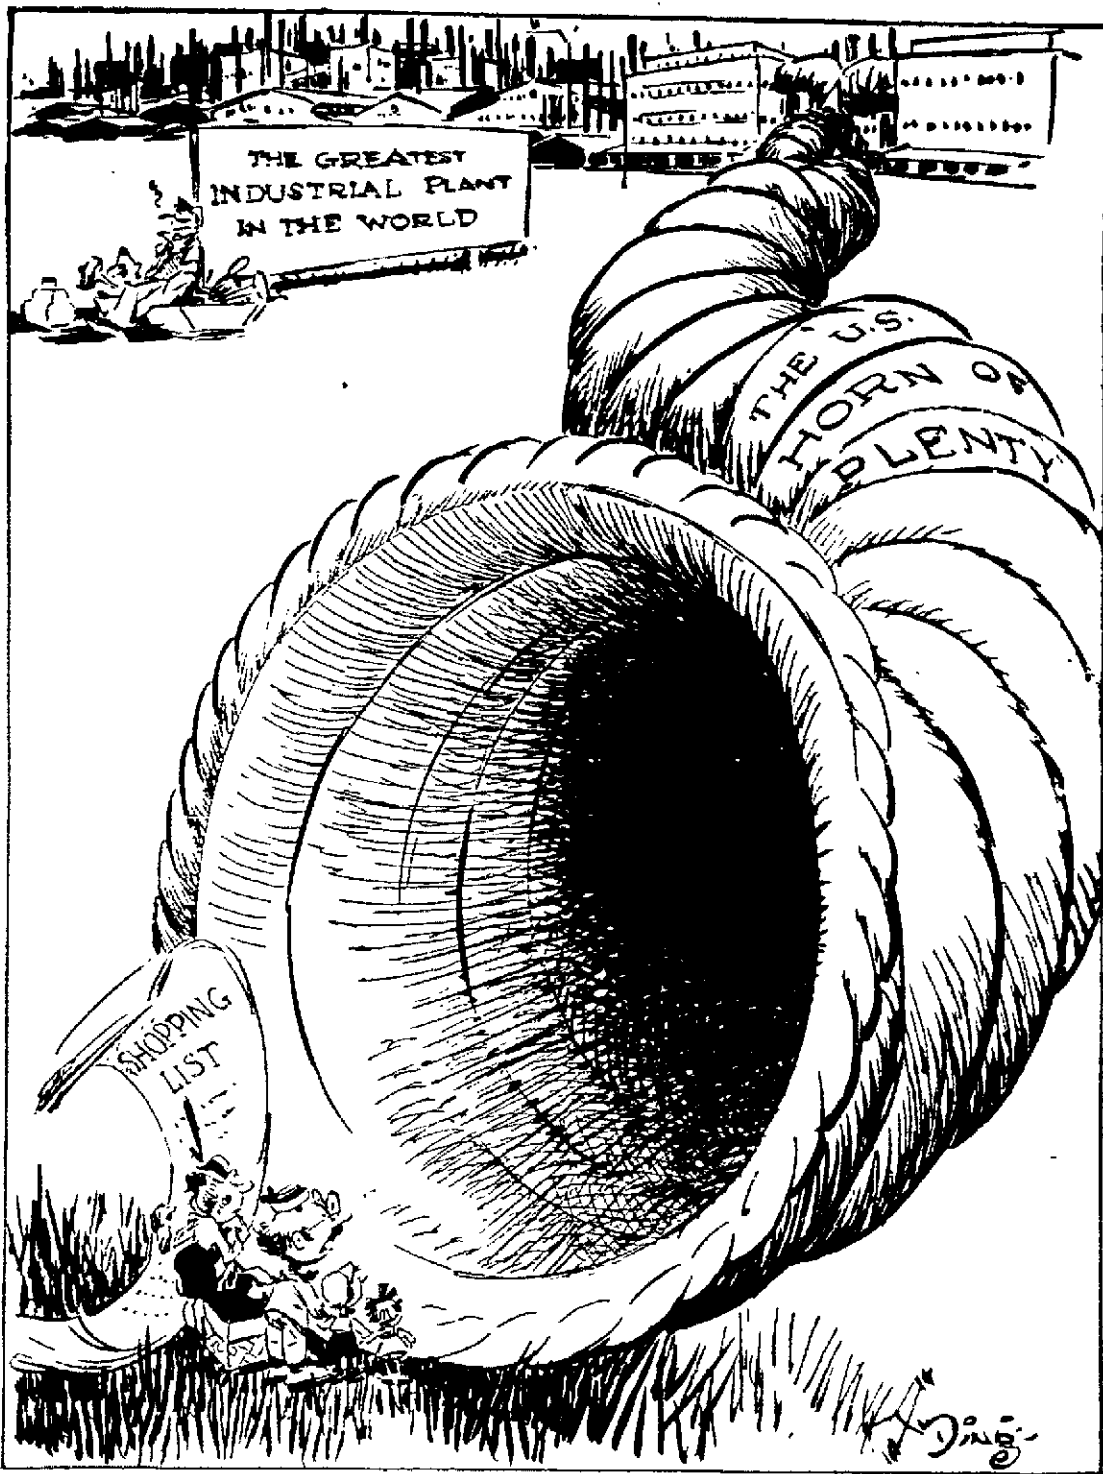

Changing Familiar Street Names

IN THE Russian city of Odessa, officials have taken to changing established street names, to the annoyance of the citizens. Long-winded names commemorating anniversaries of Soviet progress have replaced names which were familiar to everyone.

This sounds a good deal like the rumpus caused when Mayor La Guardia changed New York's Sixth avenue to Avenue of the Americas, a not at all popular move. Following World War I a Boston mayor tried to name every street intersection after some local boy killed in the war. He may have made some votes, but no one paid attention to the new designations.

Unless there is some stronger reason for change than a momentary enthusiasm, familiar street names are better left undisturbed.

MUST BE STOPPED UP—OR SOMETHING

UNRRA To Leave Work Unfinished

By GLENN BABB

OVERSHADOWED by the noisy peace conference at Paris, another international gathering in Geneva is grappling with the vast dislocations and sufferings left by the war.

In the home of the defunct League of Nations the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration is preparing for its own passing but with the hope that other agencies will embody its spirit and mission.

There is grave uncertainty whether this can or will be done. Hope for continuation of the fight against the tremendous sum of hunger and homelessness arising from the war rests in various agencies of the United Nations—with which UNRRA has only the slightest connection.

But the time left for UNRRA grows short and the United Nations, for all the good will and high intentions of its champions, moves ponderously and slowly, dependent on decisions of its unit nations, in some of which governmental processes are none too rapid.

The Geneva meeting is the fifth general council of UNRRA, and its last. The three nations which have borne most of the financial burden—the United States, which has furnished nearly three-quarters of the funds, and the United Kingdom and Canada, from which has come 80 per cent of the other quarter—have decided that UNRRA's work in Europe shall end December 31 and in the Orient next March 31. By that time UNRRA will have expended nearly $4,000,000,000.

Both the Americans who have served as UNRRA's directors general—Herbert H. Lehman, who headed it from its formation until his resignation last March, and Fiorello H. LaGuardia, now at Geneva—have declared that great suffering will result if there is a hiatus between the end of UNRRA and the time new United Nations agencies are ready to function. But the outlook for bridging this gap smoothly is not bright. The United Nations has made a beginning toward assuming UNRRA's responsibilities but little more.

Most important of the new agencies is the international refugee organization (IRO), whose charter was approved recently by the United Nations economic and social council but still awaits ratification by the U. N. general assembly, meeting in New York Sept. 23, and ratification by member nations.

Former Ambassador John G. Winant, American representative on the economic and social council, has expressed hope that American ratification could be obtained before the end of the year, but with congress adjourned since die—probably until January—it is difficult to see how this is possible.

Moreover IRO is designed chiefly to care for and resettle refugees who are to find new homes overseas and not to feed and shelter the majority of the 850,000 displaced persons now under Allied care in Europe. There is no place in its program for ministering to the other millions whom UNRRA has helped keep alive.

Also in the formative stage is world health organization (WHO).

The current discussions at Geneva and those of the United Nations agencies in New York in the coming weeks may have much to do with determining the political complexion of Europe and Asia in 1947 and after.

BYRNES and Molotov are making it very tough for Mike Jacobs. . . . How can he peddle Louis Mauriello for $30 ringside when they give so much for free?

Molotov is built like a bank vault but our money is on James. . . . What Moscow forgot was that Jimmie had 16 months on the Supreme Court.

Jimie took the bench with a soft drawl and left talking out of the side of his mouth. Molotov may be tough but Russia has no marble gymnasium like our court where justices are selected for their muscles.

Tenants Petition to Have Rent Raised.

KANSAS CITY—Mo.—One of these days, the OPA office in Washington is going to receive a very ordinary set of form letters covering a very extraordinary situation.

They will be the application (in triplicate, of course) of Mrs. Pearl Kubat for permission to raise the rents in her Highlands hotel out on Troost avenue.

They will be accompanied by a petition from the 40-odd citizens who rent rooms from Mrs. Kubat, requesting that they be permitted to pay more for same.

Since this situation is not covered by any of the prescribed OPA rules of conduct, the local office has passed the buck to Washington. So, while the petition is pending, it might be permissible to look into this somewhat strange state of affairs.

The Highlands hotel actually is a big, old-fashioned red brick building in the heart of a Kansas City residential sector. It has both rooms and apartments.

Mrs. Kubat is a short, spry, motherly-looking lady of 58 whose sparkling black eyes get philosophical when she recalls that she bought the hotel back in 1928—and the price she paid in that boom year is partially responsible for her white hair.

"If it hadn't been for the income of my husband—Mr. Kubat is a specialist in building fancy fireplaces and the like—"I would have lost it in the next few years," she said ruefully.

As it worked out, she didn't lose the building, although it isn't paid for yet. But she saw enough hard times to engender a sympathy for other people who were having tough going in those depression days which followed.

Her tenants, who are a pretty permanent breed of people, tell you how she carried many of them for weeks and months when they were laid off or out of work. They tell of the people she not only housed, but also fed and kept laundered, free, during those rugged early thirties when jobs were scarce.

"But they paid when they could," Mrs. Kubat smiled in retrospect. "We've been lucky about getting nice people that way."

When the depression faded out of existence and war industries came to Kansas City, Mrs. Kubat did not immediately raise rents—"to give the folks a chance to get on their feet." But along came OPA ceilings, freezing the rates right where they were during the depths of the depression as far as she was concerned.

That meant literally $3 to $5 weekly for rooms which, even under normal ceilings today, would rent for two to four times that much.

Many tenants volunteered to pay increased rates and accept receipts for the ceiling prices only, but "I told them no, that wouldn't be right," Mrs. Kubat said.

Payments on the boom-bought hotel didn't go so well during war years, so when the OPA went off last month, in troops the tenants and said "Now you can raise the rents."

(Honest they did. They told me so, themselves!)
But Mrs. Kubat didn't want to be responsible for any price boom like that one back in 1928—she remembered what happened afterwards. Besides, "How could I raise the rents way up?" she asked. "Not with such good friends as John Noll—he's been with me 18 years—and Mr. and Mrs. Emery Rosenberg. Even my newest tenant, J. R. Mooney, did you ever hear of such a thing?"

So she decided to wait and see what congress did about OPA. The new law, however, didn't raise her rents any. So Mr. and Mrs. Rosenberg, who have been with her 14 years and who run the Keystone Cleaning establishment down the street, started the petition.

When it was all signed, they gave it to her and told her to take it down to the OPA office. She did. However, OPA spokesmen said it would take more than a petition from renters to raise the rates. No provision for that sort of thing, you know.

"They gave me some forms to fill out and said they'd send them to Washington and then an auditor would be sent out to go over my books and see if I'm entitled to raise the rents," Mrs. Kubat twinkled. "I guess it will take some time."

But then her eyes lighted up again. "Don't I have wonderful renters, though?" she said.

Scotsman "Talks Back" to Molotov.

PARIS — (By Wireless) — For some reason it has escaped public attention, but the one delegate who so far has stood up and really talked back to conference dictator Vyacheslav Molotov is British Undersecretary Hector McNeil, a Scotsman. Molotov was demanding that the permanent chairman of the peace conference rotate among the Big Five, while Britain had proposed France's pink-cheeked Georges Bidault as permanent chairman. In the course of this debate Molotov described the British position as "illogical."

"Don't you ever say that to me again," warned the British undersecretary, jumping to his feet and shaking his finger at Molotov. "That's an insult to my foreign secretary. My secretary of state knows what he's doing."

Then McNeil proceeded to explain that Britain was glad to support Bidault as permanent chairman as long as there was any chance of a unanimous vote for him. But since the vote was now obviously not going to be unanimous, Britain would revert to her original position of favoring a rotating chairmanship.

Molotov looked hard at the intrepid Scotsman but made no reply. It was the first time anyone had really talked back to him.

Byrnes Gets Mad.

Jimmie Byrnes, the most patient, sweet-tempered delegate at the peace conference, really hit the ceiling during a little-noticed incident the other day. What made him mad was when Molotov revealed a private deal he and Byrnes had hatched together.

Molotov was debating the same controversial question of rotating the chairmanship or letting France be the permanent chairman and he let drop the significant remark that Secretary of State Byrnes had promised him to vote for a rotating chairman.

Byrnes controlled his temper and said nothing. But his aides revealed he boiled inwardly at Molotov's indiscreet disclosure.

Unfortunately for the American position, this confirmed what the smaller nations have suspected; namely, that the United States, instead of being the real leader of the nations which devoutly favor an impartial peace actually is appeasing the bloc which favors a Soviet-dominated peace. They hope that Byrnes won't make any more backstage deals with Molotov.

The real fact is that the chairmanship wasn't important—except as a symbol of another milestone in the many victories won by Russia. Byrnes could well afford to compromise on it.

But what many people don't realize is that when all these preliminaries are finished and the conference gets down to real debate, Byrnes is hamstringed and hogtied on most of the treaty provisions.

He has agreed in advance not to differ with most of the original treaty text. On points where the United States has made definite reservations—such as the Trieste boundary—Byrnes can differ, but on all other non-reserved points the Big Four must vote as a unit. That is why the small nations will have such a hard time making any real changes in the treaty. The cards were stacked against them well in advance.

Pressure Groups Busy.

Secretary of State Byrnes got various transatlantic phone calls in Paris from senators on U. S. groups urging better treatment for Greeks, for Italians, for Ethiopians, and for the Austrian Tyrol. All the calls came from American citizens.

Finally Byrnes remarked: "So far I have received no petition from any group of citizens favoring a fair peace for America. If I receive anything from a league for a just peace for United States I shall give it No. 1 priority."

CIO Adopts "Smart" Tactics In South.

WASHINGTON — The CIO is making itself felt in the South. This does not mean that its organizing drive which began a few weeks ago has yet achieved any outstanding successes. In the political field its Political Action Committee has won some election victories and has been routed in other contests.

But the CIO has impressed itself upon the southern scene. This is evident in the stir it has created, in the issue it has become in elections, perhaps most dramatically thus far in Tennessee, and in the resistance tactics which the bigger unorganized industries have adopted.

This ferment was noted by the writer on a recent three-weeks tour of the South. The reaction of the South, by and large, is described by one CIO official:

"Well, here it is at last—let's make the best of it."

Successes so far have been in smaller plants, for which a number of contracts have been signed. No inroads have been made upon the bigger textile combinations such as Cannon in North Carolina, Bibb in Georgia, and Comer in Alabama. An enlightened paternalism has been a protective influence in some bigger industries.

But the necessary slow missionary work has started.

When the organizing drive was being planned there was a dispute within the CIO as to strategy. One view was that the campaign should concentrate first on the smaller plants as the easier job in which organizers, some of them new to the work, could gain experience. The other view, that both big and little plants should be tackled at the same time, prevailed.

The South is a fertile field for labor organization because of the low wage economy. Southern workers are friendly and receptive generally with the proper approach and when they understand the benefits of union organization.

The CIO has been smart in providing the friendly approach by using native southern organizers, which is also the best approach to southern industry. Most of the 269 organizers now busy in 12 southern states are natives.

When southern people live side by side with these CIO organizers, and find them their own kind, members of their churches, with their children going to the same schools, the alien atmosphere that labor's enemies try to create dissipates quickly.

Indicative of the value of such an approach, resentment was encountered among southern CIO officials toward interference by northern officials. This was expressed most often in statements out of New York about elections.

The southern leaders prefer to keep their campaigns, both political and organizing, strictly southern, with announcements to come from the various southern areas affected.

The belief also was expressed to this writer that perhaps CIO's participation in elections should not have been by open endorsement, which raises the target to plain view, but by working quietly on behalf of candidates who were friendly to labor's objectives. But there were arguments on the other side, too.

Counter tactics of various kinds are being employed by southern industry.

Farmer's Diary: "Each In His Own Way."

IT IS after harvest. Wheat shocks that remain across the landscape are drab and weather-beaten. I crossed our woodland to the north, and in my neighbor's wheat field I saw a furry form upon the hutter of the nearest shock. I hid behind a bushy white oak and waited.

Somehow, the woodchuck sensed the presence of something foreign. He raised up on his fat haunches and with ease turned his head in a complete semicircle, peering in my direction. The green leaves screened me from sight and the wind was from the south, blowing from him to me. Assured to his own satisfaction that there was no danger, he relaxed and began to select choice heads of wheat and poke them into his mouth with his short forepaws. I waited five minutes. Apparently satisfied, he slipped down a slippery path of straw into the beaten track that led to his burrow beneath the fence.

Along this trail, he wandered through lush clover, stopping to nip a tender daisy stem, from one side, then the other.

For him everything seemed right and as it should be. Nature supplied all his wants, conveniently to his home. He took the wheat atop the shock, leaving the chaff to my hardworking neighbor. He dined upon the richest portions of the clover, nor gave the slightest thought for tomorrow's rations.

Perhaps, in his wise, wild instinct, he knew he had rightful claim to the food he needed, since God had caused the grain to sprout and grow, regardless of whose hands had merely planted it.

hog's lot, he sauntered into his burrow without taking pains to look behind.

Slowly I walked over to the wheat shock he had just left. The hutter was completely bereft of heads; little pools of chaff had sifted at intervals upon the straw. I ran my fingers down along the groove he made in the upright sheaf, and the straw was worn smooth from his many ups and downs. I lifted the hutter—amazed at the lightness of it, without the grain. The patter of rain and the force of gravity, had formed a flatter, rounder covering than when it first was laid across the tops of the standing sheaves.

Beneath the flattened cover, the brown and amber heads were pressed into many swirls and formed a broad dense top, entirely free from moisture. I rejoiced at the deep, foodlike odor—the appetizing flavor—that rose from that fluffy top.

The woodchuck had not been the only hungry comer. Sparrows, a crow, a pheasant hen and brood—a field mouse—and a blacksnake . . . all had left their record about the shock. Perhaps the snake smelled the mice at any rate, each of the wild folk, in his own way, found sustenance for himself . . . and I my column top.

Britain Testing Labor Party Promises.

LONDON—A second sight of London after Paris produces even more forcibly the impression of violent contrast. In this dubious summer of the first post-war year Paris is like an exquisitely beautiful fruit perfect in all its contours, perfect in its rose and gold but with a worm within. London is like a fruit gnarled and weather-damaged but sound and of good flavor.

Some time passed here before the peace conference left a conflict of impressions which return as pictures. There was the queue of women of all ages who had lined up early at the door of a little grocery in a badly blitzed side-street to get a few tomatoes off the ration. Their clothes were dowdy; their faces a little strained but the weather for once was good and they gossiped cheerfully.

They seemed somehow to sum up the willingness of the British people to endure a good deal in order to do the job they conceive to be ahead.

In contrast there was the lobby of Claridges which is the one place where London's pre-war atmosphere of luxury and ease somehow been preserved. The men and women coming and going or pausing for a drink together still looked what they had been before the war—members of an immensely privileged class.

Yet although one hears no bitter outcries against "that man at Number 10 Downing Street," the time of privilege has passed in a way which prosperous Americans cannot even conceive. And somehow on entering Claridges one felt that this was like a low island in a flood where all sorts of non-aquatic beasts crowd together until the water rises a foot higher.

Then, too, there was the scene in parliament when a very dull speaker droned out to almost empty benches the explanation of a revolutionized colonial policy much in the manner of an earnest but unpopular clergyman reading a rather long second lesson.

Here were great changes announced in a manner in the last degree unexciting. And for contrast there was the evening with a group of the young planners who cluster around the Lord President Herbert Morrison and compose the inner brains trust of the Labor government.

They talked with fire and deep excitement of national plans, national experiments and a great national effort to remake a nation now poor in capital, not rich in raw materials, but strong in determination and in political skill.

It was they more than any others who struck the characteristic note of the new London. To an American who knew the Washington of Franklin Roosevelt there was something reminiscent in the air. Suddenly one realized that it was like the most stirring days of the New Deal before the division in the country grew too deep when the bustle of immense new development seemed likely to go on forever.

There were sharp differences also. The absence of any single leader with Roosevelt's power to charm and to excite, and the presence in tired faces and battered streets of undeniable reminders of a long, hard impoverishing war made the atmosphere vastly less electric. But to the competitor one did not have that suspicion that was unavoidable in New Deal Washington—the suspicion that each morning the president or Tom Corcoran or someone else rose from his bed with the glad question: "What will it be fun to do today?"

On the contrary, the British experiment in democratic socialism is proceeding according to a complex but soberly considered plan in which all the major steps were announced to the people before the last election.

It is a plan to do what no state in the past has ever "attempted." The British people have been asked to sacrifice the present to the future—to accept extreme discomfort and austerity now in order to restore their country's place as a great power and to acquire for themselves the better individual life which the Labor party promises.

The sacrifices must be made essentially because Britain is short of working capital. Money must be accumulated by exports to finance the new socialist economy. If the experiment works a brand new kind of economy will emerge.

No sacrifices which the British people could conceivably make would ever accumulate for them again enough working capital to finance a free economy on the American pattern.

Therefore, they must sacrifice freedom in the economic field while reserving it in every other. This does not by any means require state interference with every business process. On the contrary, most businessmen and farmers will carry on almost as before. The state will not attempt to control anything but the basic levers which in turn control the national economic life—credit investment policy and the great basic and monopolistic industries.

By manipulation of these levers the whole machine will be made to operate efficiently but on a much closer margin than ours. The economy will be guided and directed toward a greater productivity while far-reaching measures of social welfare raise the level of life and assure minimum well-being to all.

That is the fundamental concept of the new British socialism. As a fundamental concept it is accepted by the British Tories who understand equally well the hard realities of the national situation and differ from the Labor party largely in desiring not to go so far or so fast.

No one can tell at this moment whether such an experiment will work. The sacrifices demanded may prove too much for the people. The very complexity and largeness of the plan may cause its breakdown.

But one thing must be said. No one who has spent even a few weeks in post-war Europe and observed the effects of the war's holocaust of destruction of men and wealth can suppose that any other kind of experiment can possibly work. The nations of Europe are too poor to afford the ease and freedom which we in the United States can still enjoy. And thus their choice is between bankrupt and hopeless reaction or something akin to what the British are attempting or real totalitarianism. That is what gives the British experiment its deepest interest. (Copyright, 1946)

Before My Time—Darn It!
In a recent wistful moment, possibly the result of being trampled by a squad of strong men in the subway, I yearned publicly in this space for a return to some of the mauve courtesies of a less stonish generation. Naturally I expected to be jeered and hooted at by the stronger members of the weaker sex, the girls who love a good cigar and want to carry their own suitcases, and a few threatening letters from cave men wouldn't have startled me, either.

But quite the opposite happened. Not a jeer arrived, not a hoot was heard. Instead, to my astonishment, the next day's mail brought several rounds of applause from males and a tall stock of communiques from girls whose souls are just as horse-and-buggy as mine. "Tell us more!" implored one maiden who admitted she was a bobby-soxer but longed for chivalry nevertheless. "I have given the column to my boy friend to read," said another, "and I expect his manners to improve forthwith." A gentleman reader (and he did sound like a gentleman) suggested that the skirts of 1946 might heed some of the ancient rules of etiquette and thereby serve as irresistible inspiration to modern men.

Anyway, here are further details on how they did it in great-grandma's day:

A gentleman of ye olden time never forgot to raise his hat, with homelike as well as in society—or he was no gentleman. "Why," queried an authority, "should the father forget to lift his hat when meeting his daughter or wife, and remember it when meeting the daughter or wife of his neighbor?"

There were a variety of ways of shaking hands in that era, too, but even then the firm manly clasp was preferred, and the dead fish squeeze was frowned upon. "If a man gives you his hand in greeting, he should not offer two fingers churlishly, nor superciliously lift his hand, expecting to construct a Goth arch with another's lifted hand. He will clasp the hand of a friend cordially indicating good will."

Americans are traditionally curious, and the etiquette books of day before yesterday cautioned their readers against displaying "the dreaded American fault, curiosity."

In the days when Victorians and broughams roamed the streets, a gentleman was required to sit on the front seat unless requested to do otherwise. When the carriage stopped and the lady spoke with another lady outside the carriage, he had no alternative but to descend and stand as the ladies conversed. One cultural scholar of the Gay Nineties was firm on the subject of gentlemen helping ladies from traps. "Few know how to do it with the necessary support. A woman puts her hand into the man's, her right foot on the first step where there is more than one (if only one step, her left foot) and springs lightly to the ground."

While strolling with her escort, "a lady does not take a gentleman's arm unless she is quite elderly or infirm. At night, it is of course proper to do so." (And much more fun, eh, boys?)

Ladies were to keep their hats "sheathed," according to the good books. "These are dangerous weapons, albeit a necessity; treat them accordingly." Once the hat was off the head and on the lap, the lass was on her honor to observe safety rules. "A woman who brandishes a hatpin may never catch her intended—alive," one wag wagged.

A stranger who came upon a lady in a downpour and offered her his umbrella was "a cad and a boor," but he was permitted to pull her from under the chin of a runaway horse or rescue her if she fell into a manhole. When saved from a serious accident by passing male, a lady was permitted to express her wild gratitude by telling him, "I am indebted to you for your most valuable assistance."

It was fashionable for a well-brought up maiden of that day to intone: "I will marry a poor man if I love but I will spurn the rude man even into spinstership."

The bartender at the Astor (this season's bartender, I mean) might be surprised to learn that in his grandfather's day a woman staying in a hotel alone NEVER ordered wine unless it was a small glass of claret, or, at the most, of sauterne. No gin rickys, son; no whither old-fashioned, please.

Young ladies were cautioned not to preface sentences with pet phrases or tricks of conversation. If a belle began with "Look here," a gently reproving elder might say, "I AM looking, and a most charming picture I see." (Get it?)

Those members of the audience who are intrigued by this era will kindly step up. The time machine leaves from Pennsylvania station in half an hour.

One out of every 500 diamonds mined is good enough to meet the craftsmen's test for top color (blue-white) and to be used in the finest jewelry.

The customary order of dish washing is glassware, then silver, plates, cups, saucers, serving dishes, platters, baking dishes, pots and pans.

Washington Letter

—By Jane Eads

WASHINGTON—The State Department had to bone up on some special protocol, and many folks studied encyclopedias, maps and almanacs in preparation for a visit here of five men from Nepal.

Because Nepal has followed a policy of exclusion and travel has been discouraged for many years, little was known of the country. A lot of people didn't even know where it is.

Most of the Nepalese are Hindus and practice unusual customs. Hindus are supposed not to eat or drink with any but members of their own faith. They also are supposed not to drink any alcohol. And they don't usually take their womenfolk around with them in public.

These things created problems for their hosts.

Nepal is an independent state on the northern frontier of India. It covers 54,000 square miles and has a population of 5,500,000. The famed Gurkha fighters come from there. Khatmandu is the capital. The guests were members of the ruling family. His Excellency, the senior commanding general of Nepal, Baber Shumshere Jung Bahadur Rana and second in line to inherit the rulership of his country, led the group.

Others were Lt. Gen. Ekraj Shumshere Jung Bahadur Rana and Maj. Gen. Kiran Shumshere Jung Bahadur Rana, Lt. Col. Prakash Jung Thapa and Major Surenda Bahadur Shah Naib. They all were rather good looking and wore khaki uniforms somewhat like those worn by the British.

The General, who hadn't been out of Nepal since 1908, has really been on a binge of globe-trotting. The party came here from England and France. They were under the wing of the State Department here and said they had a wonderful time.

However, everything approaching a formal dinner was out of the question what with the guests' odd eating habits. Acting Secretary of State Dean Acheson gave a reception for them. Lord Inverchapel, the British Ambassador; Britain's Field Marshal General Lord Henry Maitland Wilson and the Indian Agent General all gave similar affairs.

No women were invited to any of these and so I was unable to find out whether they sipped cocktails or ate with non-Hindus.

Theoretically, the government of Nepal is a despotism. His Majesty the Maharajahdiraj or King, Tribhubana Bir Bikram, is really a figurehead. The job is done by the Maharaja or prime minister, who is also military commander in chief. Under him is a council consisting of relatives of the king and a few others.

The country's former savage legal code, with ordeals by fire and water and punishments by mutilation and torture, was abolished in 1851. Treason, rebellion and desertion are punishable by death.

Murder and the killing of cows is a capital offense. Manslaughter and the maiming of cows brings life imprisonment. Brahmins and women are exempt from capital punishment. Among certain tribes a woman at any moment can divorce herself by placing a betel nut under her husband's pillow.

Between 50 and 75 percent of the rough stone is lost in the polishing and cutting of a diamond.

The early Britons and Gauls were very practical about the business of jewelry; they used rings as currency.

Until modern times only royalty and near royalty could display fine diamond rings. Today in the United States where a diamond engagement ring has become an entrenched tradition, most alfalfa bound girls own one.

Frozen Food Should Be Called 'Checking Account', Club Told

"Eventually the small home freezer will replace the maid," Mrs. Julia Kiene, director of the Westinghouse home economics institute, told Rotarians at their luncheon meeting Tuesday in the Mansfield-Leland hotel.

Speaking on "Frozen Foods," Mrs. Kiene said that as early as the beginning of the last century Napoleon spent large sums of money trying to find a suitable way to preserve food for his army, and that it was he who instigated canning.

She warned home freezer owners and prospective owners that "frozen foods should be considered as a checking account and not as a savings account," pointing out that there is a limit to storage time on all foods when they will retain original flavor.

Mrs. Kiene cited four fundamentals to be observed in regards to use of frozen foods and their preparation and handling.

She pointed out that only best quality foods should be bought for freezing; that proper packaging was essential to good preservation; and likewise proper preparation and handling of foods; and finally, the proper storage of them.

Mrs. Kiene was introduced by Paul Endriss, program chairman.

HAS FAITH

Tortured, But Bishop Still Believes in Japs.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind.—(INS)—Three years torture in a Japanese prison camp have not changed the belief of Bishop Ralph A.

Ward, of the Methodist church, that there are "plenty of good Japanese."

"When the curtain of war terrorism has been fully lifted," Bishop Ward said, "we shall find that plenty of Japanese, both Christians and non-Christians, did all they could under a fanatical military to soften the sadism and ruthlessness of the Japanese government and army in China."

Bishop Ward knows from first-hand experience about the sadism of which he speaks. During his prison stay he underwent the notorious "water cure" as well as electrical shock "treatment" and just ordinary beatings.

COLORFUL STORY OF ALTGELD AT CITY LIBRARY

Novel By Howard Fast Based on Career of Richland County Son.

THE AMERICAN, by Howard Fast, due Saturday at the Mansfield library, tells the controversial story of John Peter Altgeld, former Richland countian, and his colorful career.

The novel touches briefly on Altgeld's boyhood, his Civil war experiences, and his struggle to become a successful lawyer and politician. Then the real story begins, and he emerges as a hero in an epochal struggle between the forces of democracy and the "powers that be."

WE HAPPY FEW, by Helen Howe, is a comedy of manners in which a segment of our east coast intelligentsia gets a not too gentle going-over. Dorothea is a lovely young bud on an old New England family tree, and is deeply grateful that her family and the Harvard faculty circle in which she moves comprise the most "cultivated" people in the world. Then comes the awakening which changes this charming prig into a real human being.

MIRROR OF DELUSION, by May Reisser, follows the adventures of Charlotte Clark, who went to Athens as companion to the wife of the artist, Eaton. Curious incidents force themselves on her notice, and fear grows upon her while tragedy works itself out to its inevitable end.

Other fiction: ALL FOR THE BEST, Plageman; CASE OF THE BACKWARD MULE, Gardner; TWINS OF NUERNBERG, Kesten.

ALEXANDER HAMILTON, by Nathan Schachner, is the first full length biography of Hamilton in years. It's the remarkable story of the man whose legacy to his adopted country was a strong central government, a working financial system, and a personal legend about which controversy still rages. The result of 10 years of careful research, it is full, balanced, objective, yet marked by a human understanding and story quality which any reader will find absorbing.

I CHOSE FREEDOM, by Victor Kravchenko, presents the life story of a former Soviet official, his experiences as a member of the Communist party, and his break with the Soviet regime after he had been sent to America on an important mission. It is a bitter book, and may well arouse a storm of controversy.

FROM TRAIL DUST TO STARDUST, by Edward A. Starr, tells the story of dusty trail and covered wagons, of tall ships and salty trade routes, of side wheeled and the growing railroad empire, of the development of the motor carrier, and the conquest of the air--in fact, the whole history of our transportation system. Richly illustrated with maps and pen sketches, it is a vivid and engrossing tale that combines the authority of historical fact with the appeal of a well told story.

Other non-fiction includes: THE ABSOLUTE WEAPON, Brodie;

DIESEL - ELECTRIC PLANTS, Kates; MINERALS OF MIGHT, Hotchkiss; THE WOODLAND BOOK, Ransom; FOUNDATIONS OF READING INSTRUCTION, Betts; NEW CAREERS IN INDUSTRY, Amis & Sherman; FINANCING AMERICAN PROSPERITY, Anderson; THE TECHNIQUE OF THE PICTURE STORY, Mich & Eberman; LIFE OF RICHARD WAGNER, Newman; GROUNDS FOR LIVING, Ingram & Farnham; GREEN

Terry Thompson is home. All you girls who met Terry when she joined the KAC and followed her to England will be interested in the events in THE YOUNGEST WAC COMES HOME, by Bernadine Bailey. Her new job in a big department store and a new apartment make life busy, but Terry finds time for romance in civilian life just as she did in the army.

There are three men in Terry's life and their problems plus her own make life exciting.

There is a new book for older boys, too. THE SCRAPPER, by Leland Silliman, is a story full of suspense and action. Tim goes to camp as a kitchen helper and finds himself the center of pranks and competition. The pranks include one with a chloroformed skunk. The contest is for the paddle given to the best camper. The competition is keen and not always fair.

A forest fire and an epidemic give Tim a chance at what he can do.

For younger readers, both boys and girls, there is THE PUPPET MAN AND OTHER STORIES, by Barbara Young. Here are all kinds of stories. Besides the puppets, there is Tula Bell who opened packages, Lily Louisa who ran away, and Mimi who took a magic trip.

Kroger DOUBLE YOUR MONEY BACK GUARANTEE

(Walter Winchell is on vacation. His column will be resumed Sept. 1.)

LADY DIAMOND JIM BRADY—“Death Valley Scotty” used to slather money around, but he had to go back to his desert “gold mine” now and then, to replenish the roll. . . . But there’s a spender in Hollywood who seems never to run thin—and it’s a pretty girl, still in her twenties, who makes the Byzantine banquets in the films look like lunch at the Automat.

Virginia Hill is her name, a brunette who came from Virginia to Broadway several years ago and took over. She tried to pick up all the tabs, and when she was felled (not often) she sent gifts from Cartier’s and Tiffany’s to her hosts. She soon found Hollywood calling—oh, not for the usual reason—just because Broadway began to bore her.

Before she turned her attractive face westward, she had become the top Santa Claus in New York nightlife. Every night she presided over parties of from 10 to 30. A $1,000 check was commonplace.

Dave Wolper was then an attorney, with a theatrical clientele. He suggested Virginia buy a nightclub—and he be her own best customer. She said she would. If Wolper would go in with her. So he hooked up with Paul Berny, who knew about such things, and Virginia put up $60,000 for a share in the Hurricane restaurant. Wolper liked the game and became a nightier impresario, which he still is.

Within a week, Virginia began “cheating”—she sneaked around to rival clubs to blow her dough. Her partners didn’t like that. So she told them to keep the Hurricane—she wasn’t going to be tied down. Since then she’s been burning up Chicago, Miami, and mostly Hollywood.

During the war, in any place she entered, she sent drinks to all men in uniform. Niesi, who weren’t welcome in most places—except when she organized a dozen and drought them in with her—she gathered in groups. For her all ropes came down.

Some of the richest and proudest spenders are flabbergasted not only when she beats them to the check in their own parties, but, seated at other tables, when they ask for the bad news, hear: “Miss Hill has paid it!”

Civil Aeronautics bureau may not know this: When it approved an around-the-world route for TWA linked with Northwest Air Line, Howard Hughes, who owns TWA, had an option on control of Northwest. . . . TWA is to fly N. Y. to Shanghai, via Europe; Northwest is to pick up there, flying to Alaska and Seattle. . . . Hughes’ option was to become effective if, and when Northwest got government permission to fly the Pacific. . . . So it appears Hughes, who broke the around-the-world air record, has in hand the around-the-world route he laid out on that famous four-day zoom.

And, with announcement of the globe-circling license, plus the approval of the Constellations with changes that will take only three weeks, TWA stock leaped so that Hughes’ holdings have been rising at a rate of about $1,000,000 a day—as he lies and listens to his ribs knitting.

More than 300 U. S. treasury men have moved in on Boston, taken over an entire building. . . . It’s a tremendous probe of tax returns from some couple of hundred New England shoe factories. . . . Reports to Washington were that, before the war, the standard wholesale profit on shoes was about four cents a pair; that this was multiplied to $1 a pair by some manufacturers in wartime. Much of the difference being handled under the table. . . . Many of the factories are in another dilemma, besides. Their books have been subpoenaed and are frozen, so they can’t close their accounts as of their fiscal year-end, June 30.

NEW YORK — Representative John M. Coffee, of Washington, who took $2,500 from a war contractor for swindling a deal for him, has been conspicuous for years as one of those noisy mountebanks who bawled their selfless devotion to the common man and their furious hatred of corrupt exploiters of the drooling masses. . . . Franklin D. Roosevelt, since his death, has been exposed beyond challenge as the greediest, stingiest and most hypocritical of them all and no member of his family nor his political following has dared deny the uncontrollable profits of his avarice in exploiting the presidential office to bilk his son’s creditors and his meanness in his dealings with workers employed at his estate.

The revelations of the last year are so depressing that even some Americans who opposed Roosevelt would drop the subject and waive the presentation of further details of the disgusting scramble for graft that went on during the New Deal, lest the people lose confidence in popular government. To take that course, however, would be to protect fakery who are still in action and to fail in the duties which are assumed by a free press in compensation for its privileges.

So, even if the Democrats should keep control of congress this year and manipulate the official investigation so as to spare all but a few of their wretched political “expendables,” such as Coffee and Andrew May, initiative reporting in the papers will continue to heap up material for historians.

Thus, when the story of the New Deal comes to be written, future Americans may know what fakery imposed on the faith and tears of their ancestors.

Coffee, with a reputation for brutality in the abuse of all who disagreed with his evil gang, has whined and resorted to the most transparent explanations of the $2,500 check from Elvind Anderson, the Tacoma contractor, in payment for his help in getting Anderson a contract to build a hospital for $1,000,000. He loved that chimerical political monstrosity, the common man, so fondly that he dickered for a kick-back on a project to accommodate men wounded in a war for “democracy.”

The sequence of events has been established beyond even Coffee’s own power to deny. Anderson asked Coffee to help him get the contract and Coffee did it and Anderson got it and his bid included the $2,500 for Coffee in the guise of Washington representation, so that the common man, through his income taxes, eventually supplied the money for Coffee. Anderson sent his check to Coffee’s secretary and Coffee got the money and banked it to his own account. Now he says the $2,500 was a campaign contribution, and from a Republican who was a politician as well as a contractor, mind you, although there was no campaign running at the time, but he admits that he failed to report it as a campaign contribution. And, in a final, desperate effort to clear himself, Coffee reveals his contempt for the common man’s intelligence, with his explanation that he owed himself $3,000 from his 1938 campaign and applied the $2,500 to reduce his own debt to himself. Nor did he even pay income tax on the takeoff, holding it to be a tax-exempt gift.

So what is this Coffee’s political record? Is he a constant fighter for the non-existent all-American sloth and one of those savagely righteous enemies of corrupt exploiters?

The late Dies committee spotted Coffee early in its investigation of Communism and its ramifications in the Roosevelt government and the New Deal following. And Coffee naturally was one of those who tried to disband it and put a stop to the compilation of a permanent and detailed record involving himself.

This record still exists, although copies of the report now are rare, and it shows Coffee up as a hair-trigger “endorser” of causes and events, promoted by the Communist conspiracy, and an agile joiner.

Coffee was a sponsor of American Youth for Democracy of which the Dies committee reported that this was a new name and form for the Young Communist league whose old name had become a political handicap.

BAMBERG, Germany—(AP)—Maj. Gen. Ernie Harmon, America’s No. 1 policeman overseas, is an unorthodox fighting man.

Ordinary tank commanders still shudder at his dictum that the armor, not the infantry, should spearhead assaults against enemy fortified lines.

Yet Harmon proved his point in the Anzio beachhead breakout when he slashed 5,000 yards through four German defense lines.

“It cost me 116 tanks that day,” he recalled, “but we lost only ten doughboys killed and less than 100 wounded. It was worth the tanks to save hundreds of infantry lives, and within a week I had 70 of the tanks back in action again.

Globe-Jotting

A loyal old army horseman from Fort Riley, still wears his cavalry boots, but he is too hard-headed ever to want to fight a war with outmoded weapons.

His favorite vehicle now is a railroad train loaned him by Gen. McNarney to shuttle about the American zone for inspection of his troops of the new American constabulary.

“I like my own train better,” he said, “but I wore the rims off the wheels and had to borrow one from the boss till mine gets fixed.”

About 70 per cent of the constabulary are enlisted men in the regular army, and Ernie is as sentimental as a schoolgirl about the old combat men. He always has a soldier-to-soldier word with them. He came to one man wearing a faded 36th division patch on his shoulder. “Were you at the Rapido river in Italy?” he asked. “Yes, sir,” said the soldier, and his eyes held the memory of dead buddies. “Tough show—that one,” said Harmon. “Yes, sir,” said the soldier, and tears began rolling down his cheeks. The flesh wounds knit after battle; the heart wounds never do.

COURT REVENUE JUMPS $2,000

Criminal Cases Boost Income For July to $6,496, Clerk Reports.

A marked increase in criminal cases and eviction suits in Mansfield municipal court last month boosted revenue from fines, court costs and forfeitures to $6,496, more than $2,000 ahead of the June total, Court Clerk Paul Ritchie reported.

Two hundred and 63 criminal cases brought $6,179 in revenue as compared with receipts of $4,083 in June.

Eviction actions accounted for 32 of the 58 civil cases filed last month, Ritchie said.

On the brighter side, the records reveal that 18 couples have been married by Judge H. H. Schettler so far this year as compared with 13 to Aug. 1, 1945.

Collections from fines and costs in city cases totaled $1,746.80. Bond forfeitures in traffic cases added another $1,022, while bond forfeitures in all other cases totaled $747.90.

City Shows Progress In Fight Against Contaminated Milk

Real progress has been made in Mansfield during the last four years in the increased number of milk consumers now using pasteurized milk. Dr. W. B. Wild, city-county health commissioner, pointed out today.

Only six per cent of all milk consumers in the city are now using unpasteurized milk as compared with 15 per cent four years ago, Wild said.

Through vigilance and one of the best milk control codes in the state, Mansfield can report now that diseases contracted through milk are almost non-existent.

Because milk so seldom is reported as the agent through which disease is contracted, it is probable that few people realize the efforts which the city makes to protect its residents from the many diseases that can be carried in unclean milk products, the commissioner said.

This campaign extends to all milk products and includes even cheese and ice cream, Wild said. “We have some people who would not think of drinking or

CITY TO PUSH HOME PROJECT

Plans to Employ Engineer to Prepare Survey of Sites For Vets’ Housing.

As Mansfield prepared today to push plans for erection of 75 more veterans’ housing units, a report from the National Housing agency showed that 225,000 houses and apartments were completed throughout the nation during the first six months of this year.

National Housing Expediter Wilson W. Wyatt said that in addition to the completed houses and apartments, nearly half a million others were started during the six-month period.

Mayor Roy W. Vaughn said today that with a $15,000 council-voted vet housing fund available now, next step in setting up of the 75 additional units will be to hire an engineer to make a topographical survey of two sites proposed for the units.

The proposed sites are on Grace street and at Diamond and Hedges streets. Once the topographical maps are complete the Federal Housing agency will prepare plans and let a contract for construction of the units.

Near Milfin, 75 other units are under construction. They were also donated by the federal government but are being sponsored by the McVey Post, American Legion.

Vaughn said that meeting of the Mansfield Housing authority, headed by W. V. B. Ford, will probably be called next week to consider the employing of an engineer to draft maps.

BUYS BUILDING

Steve Christ Purchases Vogue Shop Site on N. Main.

Sale of the downtown store building at 86 North Main street, occupied by the Vogue Shop, to Steve Christ, owner of the New Deal grill, 113 North Walnut street, was announced today.

The property was owned by the Michael Saunders estate and changed hands through the Huff Realty company and the Cleveland Trust company, trustees for the estate, at a reported price of $60,000.

J. S. Roth, owner of the Vogue Shop, has a lease on the property with three years still to run, Christ said today he has no immediate plans for use of the building.

Kinsey Show Back Again

After a three-year absence from the city, the Madge Kinsey players will return next Monday for an indefinite stay.

The big tent of the Kinseys, familiar to Mansfielders over a period of years, will be pitched at the foot of the South Walnut street hill. Nightly shows will feature variety and comedy of the variety which has made the Kinsey players known throughout Ohio.

The Kinsey show was off the road during the last two years of the war because a number of its employees were in the armed

U. N. GROUP STATES FOOD MEANS PEACE

Plan Includes International Board to Stabilize Prices, Build Up Reserves.

WASHINGTON—(UP)—The United Nations food and agriculture organization today proposed an international ever-normal granary, declaring that the world cannot have hunger and peace too.

It said the granary should be administered by a permanent world food board. It would attempt to stabilize world food prices, channel surplus foods to undernourished nations and build up food reserves to tide the world over a disastrous crop year.

In addition, it would cooperate with other international agencies such as the world bank in developing trade and industry to create buying power for food products.

The proposal will be submitted to the food organization’s world conference which opens at Copenhagen, Sept. 2.

The agency said the only alternative to some plan to control surpluses and wipe out hunger “is a drift back to nationalistic policies . . . which may well be the prelude to a third world war that will end our civilization.”

Would Fix Prices. The board could stabilize world food prices, it said, by setting maximum and minimum prices for specific commodities based on anticipated supply and demand.

The board would buy up commodities when prices fell below the minimum and sell when they went above the maximum.

The food organization said it was unable to estimate at this time how much money would be necessary for the program. Member nations could contribute in direct ratio to the benefits they would derive.

The board also would have some funds of its own since it would be purchasing commodities when prices were low and selling them when prices were higher.

In case production of any commodity threatened to get out of hand and destroy the world balance, the board would negotiate export quotas between the producing nations.

Try and Stop Me

—By Bennet Cerf

A thirsty gentleman wandered into a corner saloon and ordered a dry Martini. He drank it with evident relish, and allowed as how it was the best darn Martini he ever had tasted in his life.

"Do you always mix them this way?" he asked. "Or was this one of those divine accidents?"

The bartender whipped up another one as proof, and the customer declared it was even better than the first.

"Such genius deserves a reward," said the customer. He reached into his pocket and produced a live lobster which he pressed into the hands of the astonished barkeep. "Here take this with my compliments," he said.

The barkeep held the live crustacean gingerly at arm's length. "Thanks," he said dubiously. "I suppose I can take it home for dinner."

"No, no," objected the customer. "He's already had his dinner. Take him to a movie."

The cashier of the restaurant kept a paper napkin next to the cash box. "Whenever a customer walks off without his change," he explained, "I tap the counter with it as hard as I can."

Before the Crusades, sugar was not known in northern Europe.

(Walter Winchell is on vacation. His column will be resumed Sept. 1.)

LADY DIAMOND JIM BRADY—"Death Valley Scotty" used to slather money around, but he had to go back to his desert "gold mine" now and then, to replenish the roll. . . . But there's a spender in Hollywood who seems never to run thin—and it's a pretty girl, still in her twenties, who makes the Byzantine banquets in the films look like lunch at the auto-mat.

Virginia Hill is her name, a brunette who came from Virginia to Broadway several years ago and took over. She tried to pick up all the tabs, and when she was foiled (not often) she sent gifts from Cartier's and Tiffany's to her hosts. She soon found Hollywood calling—oh, not for the usual reason—just because Broadway began to bore her.

Before she turned her attractive face westward, she had become the top Santa Claus in New York nightlife. Every night she presided over parties of from 10 to 30. A $1,000 check was commonplace.

Dave Wolper was then an attorney, with a theatrical clientele. He suggested Virginia buy a nightclub—and he be her own best customer. She said she would, if Wolper would go in with her. So he hooked up with Paul Berner, who knew about such things, and Virginia put up $60,000 for a share in the Hurricane restaurant. Wolper liked the game and became a nightier impresario, which he still is.

Within a week, Virginia began "cheating"—she sneaked around to rival clubs to blow her dough. Her partners didn't like that. So she told them to keep the Hurricane—she wasn't going to be tied down. Since then she's been burning up Chicago, Miami, and mostly Hollywood.

During the war, in any place she entered, she sent drinks to all men in uniform. Niesi, who weren't welcome in most places—except when she organized a dozen and brought them in with her—she gathered in groups. For her all ropes came down.

And, with announcement of the globe-circling license, plus the approval of the Constellations with changes that will take only three weeks, TWA stock leaped so that Hughes' holdings have been rising at a rate of about $1,000,000 a day—as he lies and listens to his ribs knitting.

More than 300 U. S. treasury men have moved in on Boston, taken over an entire building. . . . It's a tremendous probe of tax returns from some couple of hundred New England shoe factories. . . . Reports to Washington were that, before the war, the standard wholesale profit on shoes was about four cents a pair; that this was multiplied to $1 a pair by some manufacturers in wartime, much of the difference being handled under the table. . . . Many of the factories are in another dilemma, besides. Their books have been subpoenaed and are frozen, so they can't close their accounts as of their fiscal year-end, June 30.

Fair Enough

NEW YORK—Representative John M. Coffee, of Washington, who took $2,500 from a war contractor for swinging a deal for him, has been conspicuous for years as one of those noisy mountebanks who bawled their selfless devotion to the common man and their furious hatred of corrupt exploiters of the drooling masses. - Franklin D. Roosevelt, since his death, has been exposed beyond challenge as the greediest, stingiest and most hypocritical of them all and no member of his family nor his political following has dared deny the uncontested proofs of his advance in exploiting the presidential office to bilk his credulous and his meanness in his dealings with workers employed at his estate.

The revelations of the last year are so depressing that even some Americans who opposed Roosevelt would drop the subject, and waive the presentation of further details of the disgusting scramble for graft that went on during the New Deal, lest the people lose confidence in popular government. To take that course, however, would be to protect fakery who are still in action and to fail in the duties which are assumed by a free press in compensation for its privileges.

So, even if the Democrats should keep control of congress this year and manipulate the official investigation so as to spate all but a few of their wretched political "expensables," such as Coffee and Andrew May, initiative reporting in the papers will continue to heap up material for historians.

Thus, when the story of the New Deal comes to be written, future Americans may know what fakery imposed on the faith and fears of their ancestors.

Coffee, with a reputation for brutality in the abuse of all who disagreed with his evil gang, has whined and resorted to the most transparent explanations of the $2,500 check from Elvind Anderson, the Tacoma contractor, in payment for his help in getting Anderson a contract to build a hospital for $1,000,000. He loved the "chemical political monstrosity" the common man fondly that he nicknamed for a kick-back on a project to accommodate men wounded in a war for "democracy."

The sequence of events has been established beyond even Coffee's own power to deny. Anderson asked Coffee to help him get the contract and Coffee did and Anderson got it and his bid included the $2,500 for Coffee in the guise of Washington representation, so that the common man, through his income taxes, eventually supplied the money for Coffee. Anderson sent his check to Coffee's secretary and Coffee got the money and banked it to his own account. Now he says the $2,500 was a campaign contribution, and from a Republican who was a politician as well as a contractor, mind you, although there was no campaign running at the time, but he admits that he failed to report it as a campaign contribution. And, in a final, desperate effort to clear himself, Coffee reveals his contempt for the common man's intelligence, with his explanation that he owed himself $3,000 from his 1938 campaign and applied the $2,500 to reduce his own debt to himself. Nor did he even pay income tax on the takeoff, holding it to be a tax-exempt gift.

So what is this Coffee's political record? Is he a constant fighter for the non-existent all-American slob and one of those savage, righteous enemies of corrupt exploiters?

The late Dies committee spotted Coffee early in its investigation of Communism and its ramifications in the Roosevelt government and the New Deal following. And Coffee naturally was one of those who tried to disband it and put a stop to the compilation of a permanent and detailed record involving himself.

This record still exists, although copies of the report now are rare, and it shows Coffee up as a hair-trigger "endorser" of causes and events, promoted by the Communist conspiracy, and an agile joiner.

Coffee was a sponsor of American Youth for Democracy of which the Dies committee reported that this was a new name and form for the Young Communist League whose old name had become a political handicap.

Globe-Jotting

BAMBERG, Germany—(AP)—Maj. Gen. Erwin Harmon, American No. 1 policeman overseas, is an unorthodox fighting man.

Ordinary tank commanders still shudder at his dictum that the armor, not the infantry, should spearhead assaults against enemy fortified lines.

Yet Harmon proved his point in the Anzio beachhead breakout when he slashed 5,000 yards through four German defense lines.

"It cost me 116 tanks that day," he recalled. "but we lost only ten doughboys killed and less than 100 wounded. It was worth the tanks to save hundreds of infantry lives, and within a week I had 70 of the tanks back in action again."

"It's easier to repair a tank than it is to bring half a hundred doughboys back to life."

Harmon foresees a lessening importance for tank warfare in any future war.

"I saw the cavalry go out after the first World War," he said. "and I think the last war was the only one in which tanks will have played such a major role."

"Old Gravel Voice," like many

a loyal old army horseman from Fort Riley, still wears his cavalry boots. But he is too hard-headed ever to want to fight a war with outmoded weapons.

His favorite vehicle now is a railroad train loaned him by Gen. McNarney to shuttle about the American zone for inspection of his troops of the new American constabulary.

"I like my own train better," he said, "but I wore the rims off the wheels and had to borrow one from the boss till mine gets fixed."

"Were you at the Rapido river in Italy?" he asked.

"Yes, sir," said the soldier, and his eyes held the memory of dead buddies.

"Tough show—that one," said Harmon.

"Yes, sir," said the soldier, and tears began rolling down his cheeks. The flesh wounds knit after battle, the heart wounds never do.

City Shows Progress In Fight Against Contaminated Milk

Real progress has been made in Mansfield during the last four years in the increased number of milk consumers now using pasteurized milk. Dr. W. B. Wild, city-county health commissioner, pointed out today.

Only six per cent of all milk consumers in the city are now using unpasteurized milk as compared with 15 per cent four years ago, Wild said.

Through vigilance and one of the best milk control codes in the state, Mansfield can report now that diseases contracted through milk are almost non-existent.

Because milk so seldom is reported as the agent through which disease is contracted, it is probable that few people realize the effects which the city makes to protect its residents from the many diseases that can be carried in unclean milk products, the commissioner said.

This campaign extends to all milk products and includes even cheese and ice cream, Wild said. "We have some people who would not think of drinking or using unpasteurized milk, yet they will use cheese that hadn't been pasteurized and even from an un-inspected source in the false belief that only the whole milk is the carrier," he explained.

Most of the city's daily vigilance is the responsibility of Sam H. Young as dairy inspector. Young checks on all milk and milk products sold in the city and his work even takes him into other counties to reach the producers of milk that is marketed in Mansfield in one form or another.

There are still some people who use unpasteurized milk because of one or more of the false beliefs that it destroys the vitamins or changes the flavor, the health commissioner said. But proper pasteurization does none of these things, he pointed out.

The most common germs that can be carried in milk are scarlet fever, septic sore throat, rheumatic fever, typhoid fever, undulant fever, tuberculosis and diphtheria, Wild explained.

CITY TO PUSH HOME PROJECT

Plans to Employ Engineer to Prepare Survey of Sites For Vets' Housing.

As Mansfield prepared today to push plans for erection of 75 more veterans' housing units, a report from the National Housing agency showed that 225,000 houses and apartments were completed throughout the nation during the first six months of this year.

National Housing Expediter William W. Wyatt said that in addition to the completed houses and apartments, nearly half a million others were started during the six-month period.

Mayor Roy W. Vaughn said today that with a $15,000 council-voted vet housing fund available now, next step in setting up of the 75 additional units will be to hire an engineer to make a topographical survey of two sites proposed for the units.

The proposed sites are on Grace street and at Diamond and Hedges streets. Once the topographical maps are complete the Federal Housing agency will prepare plans and let a contract for construction of the units.

Near Mifflin, 75 other units are under construction. They are also donated by the federal government but are being sponsored by the McVey Post, American Legion.

Vaughn said that meeting of the Mansfield Housing authority, headed by W. B. Ford, will probably be called next week to consider the employing of an engineer to draft maps.

The Kinsey show was off the road during the last two years of the war because a number of its employees were in the armed forces.

U. N. GROUP STATES FOOD MEANS PEACE

Plan Includes International Board to Stabilize Prices, Build Up Reserves.

WASHINGTON—(UP)—The United Nations food and agriculture organization today proposed an international ever-normal granary, declaring that the world cannot have hunger and peace too.

It said the granary should be administered by a permanent world food board. It would attempt to stabilize world food prices, channel surplus foods to undernourished nations and build up food reserves to tide the world over a disastrous crop year.

In addition, it would cooperate with other international agencies such as the world bank in developing trade and industry to create buying power for food products.

The proposal will be submitted to the food organization's world conference which opens at Copenhagen, Sept. 2.

The agency said the only alternative to some plan to control surpluses and wipe out hunger "is a drift back to nationalistic policies . . . which may well be the prelude to a third world war that will end our civilization."

Would Fix Prices. The board could stabilize world food prices, it said, by setting maximum and minimum prices for specific commodities based on anticipated supply and demand. The board would buy up commodities when prices fell below the minimum and sell when they went above the maximum.

The food organization said it was unable to estimate at this time how much money would be necessary for the program. Member nations could contribute in direct ratio to the benefits they would derive.

The board also would have some funds of its own since it would be purchasing commodities when prices were low and selling them when prices were higher. In case production of any commodity threatened to get out of hand and destroy the world balance, the board would negotiate export quotas between the producing nations.
